Offer Cigarets to New Friends In Ireland

Irish coffee may taste bad to them and the beer may seem flat but newly arrived members of the American Expeditionary force in Northern Ireland are making friends with the British navy by offering cigarets as shown in the Central Press Cablephoto, above, from London. The Yanks report the Irish people friendly and the girls pretty and easy to get acquainted with.

AUTHOR URGES FARM DICTATOR

Bromfield Says Agriculture Needs One Just Like U. S. Has For Industry.

Agriculture needs a "dictator" to direct its wartime production just as the nation's industry is being co-ordinated by Donald Nelson, Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield said today in a talk before a Farmers' Week audience at Ohio State university.

A number of Richland county farmers and leaders of farm organizations are attending the sessions in Columbus. In the county delegation are County Agent George B. Ganyard and Miss Elizabeth Bay, county home demonstration agent.

"It seems to me," Bromfield said," that agriculture should have a dictator like industry, one man who can wipe out the red tape conniving of Washington bureaus and inefficiency.

After the war, America's strength will lie in its control of a major portion of the world's food supply, Bromfield asserted.

"If we hold those in our hands we can say to the rest of the world, 'you agree to this or you don't get anything to eat'," he declared.

The farmers were told by Bromfield that a socialized world will

ARREST 2 BOYS

Police Accuse Them of Gas Thefts From 4 Autos.

Two Mansfield boys faced municipal and juvenile authorities today after a gasoline-stealing expedition last night, that relieved four different cars in the city of two gallons of gasoline each.

Gardia R. Crose, 18, of 761 Bowman street, was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail by Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch when he pleaded guilty to petty larceny this morning.

His 17-year-old companion is being held for investigation by juvenile authorities.

Police said the pair stole gasoline from cars parked in an alley off High street, on Sherman Ppace, West Third street, and on Douglas avenue.

Police arrested them at 6 a. m. today after a resident had notified them of their suspicious actions.

Yanks In AEF Find Irish Coffee Bad, But Girls Pretty

By C. R. CUNNINGHAM
(UP Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE AEF, In the British Isles—Troops of the American Expeditionary Force reported today that the coffee on this side of the ocean was bad, the beer indifferent and the whisky expensive and very strong.

They have found the people friendly and the girls pretty and easy to get acquainted with.

The complaint about the coffee is that though its quality is good the British and Irish cooks do not know how to make it, and as to the beer they find it flatter and less palatable than American lager.

Canteen managers, barkeepers and shop keepers report that the Yanks are a sober lot and believe

DRINKS HIT BY SUGAR RATIONS

Mansfielders Already Notice Shortage; Cake Icing May Be Thinner, Too.

Mansfielders may have trouble getting their favorite soft drinks and the icing on their cakes may be a little thinner as a result of the nation's sugar-rationing program, it was revealed today.

Already several of the popular soft drinks are being rationed to dealers who receive only a specified number of cases and cartons a week. The rationing, which will limit restaurants and confectioneries to about two-thirds of their usual purchases, will hit the sale of cartons of six bottles for home use.

Soft drink manufacturers, candy makers, and bakers have been informed by the government that they will be limited to approximately the same amount of sugar they used in 1940. If it becomes no worse than that, the candy and cake makers predict they won't have to do much restricting.

The bottling companies which produce the soft drinks said the syrup they use to mix drinks has been curtailed in anticipation of

Mansfield Woman Dies Two Hours After Making Will

Just two hours after she signed her will, Mrs. Leva Moury Tinkey, 65, of 570 Woodhill road, died of a cerebral hemorrhage at Mansfield General hospital yesterday at 2 p. m.

Coming to the office of Atty. C. J. Anderson in the Richland Trust building at 9:30 a. m., she told him what she wanted included in the document and then left to do shopping while he drew up the legal papers.

At 11:15 a. m. she returned to the office and after approximately 45 minutes of discussion, signed the will and started to leave to board the bus for her home.

Atty. Anderson said he saw that she was having difficulty walking and when she complained of feeling dizzy, he urged her to sit in his outer office while he called a physician.

The physician first took her to her home and later she was taken

PORT ARTHUR, Tex.—(AP) The navy announced today a submarine had been sighted off Port Aransas, Tex., at 9 a. m. "It was not determined whether it was an enemy submarine but it is presumed it is," said the report from the office of Commander R. R. Ferguson, navy port director for Port Arthur.

SAN JUAN, P. R. — (INS) — The steamship Coamo arrived in San Juan harbor today with 71 survivors of an unidentified vessel torpedoed and sunk in the Atlantic with 321 persons aboard.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — German submarines have made their ninth successful attack on Allied shipping along the Atlantic coast within two weeks, but an enemy craft may have permitted a prospective 10th victim to slip out of its grasp, the navy announced today.

The 7,096-ton tanker Francis E. Powell, owned by the Atlantic Refining company, was sunk by a torpedo somewhere off the Atlantic coast late Monday night or early Tuesday.

The entire crew of the tanker got away after a German torpedo split open her side, but a wave picked up one lifeboat and tumbled its occupants into the sea.

Fourteen crew members in another lifeboat rescued three members of the smashed lifeboat.

Eleven more men were rescued today, the coast guard announced, raising to 28 the number saved out of a crew of 32.

The body of one man was recovered, officials announced, leaving three men still unaccounted for.

Coast guard officials announced that the men were being landed at Assateague, Va.

Seventeen members of the 32-man crew were landed at this fishing port last night, exhausted by a seven-hour battering in a lifeboat.

They said a single torpedo

FULL RETAIL RATIONS LOOM

WPB Hands Over Powers To Henderson, Price-Fixing Also on Its Way.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Everything that Americans buy at the stores became liable to rationing today and legal price fixing was only one short step away.

The war production board delegated to acting Price Administrator Leon Henderson full power to ration retail commodities, only a short time before the senate completed congressional action yesterday on a much-amended price control bill and sent it on to President Roosevelt.

Democratic leaders said they expected the chief executive to sign the measure, although some of its farm price sections were known to be distasteful to him. He had asked for the legislation more than six months ago, as a check against inflation. Living costs have risen more than 11 per cent since September, 1939, government economists say, and parallel price rises have added several billion dollars to the cost of the nation's armament program.

The capital generally conceded

WINTER BACK

Weatherman Says It Will Be Colder Tonight.

The mercury dropped to wintry levels again today after three days of "warm" weather that Mansfielders knew was too good to last.

Two-tenths of an inch of snow fell during the night as the temperature went down from 47 degrees yesterday afternoon to 29.

The weatherman said it will be colder tonight with some light snow probable. There was just enough snow this morning to make streets slippery in scattered spots in the city.

Despite the colder weather that arrived last night, the average reading for the past 24 hours was 38, about 15 degrees above normal. The average was due to drop sharply today, however, for the mercury was still at 29 degrees at noon.

O. K.'S BUILDING

Supreme Court Says City Can't Restrict Area of Churches.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — The state supreme court ruled today that a municipality cannot restrict the erection of churches to areas zone for business.

The court upheld the Ohio Synod of the United Lutheran church in its suit to compel the city of Upper Arlington to issue a building permit for the construction of a church in a residential area in Upper Arlington.

SHERIFF HUNTS 12 LITTLE PIGS

Richland Farmer Reports Porkers Were Stolen From Pen.

Sheriff Frank E Robinson and his deputies today were on the trail of thieves who stole 12 suckling pigs away from their mother Monday night at the H B Robertson farm on Trimble road, northwest of Mansfield.

The little pigs, only six weeks old, were taken from a pen not far from the house. Robertson reported the theft yesterday.

Sheriff Robinson said the thieves probably hauled the pigs away in a large sack. There were no tracks near the pen. It was the first large-scale pig theft reported to the sheriff in recent weeks.

RULES OUT BONUS

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A city can not pay a bonus to a contractor for finishing work ahead of schedule, Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert ruled yesterday. Martins Ferry promised a contractor a $6,000 bonus if the municipal Electric light plant was completed in two months.

War Tune, 'Over There,' Back As Song for Bond Sale Drive

W. H. G. KEGG

W. H. G. Kegg, who retired the first of the year after a long career with the Lumbermans Mutual Insurance company and promptly moved into an active post as secretary of the Mansfield Defense Bond Sales committee, blossomed out today in a new role—as a song-writer.

Kegg turned out a timely new chorus for the familiar song of World War I days, "Over There." As may be suspected, it has to do with the current war and the part defense savings bonds will play in winning it for the United States.

John McSweeney, head of the Ohio Defense Bond committee, heard the song when he was in Mansfield Monday and requested a number of copies. Additional copies are being supplied by the local committee to all the city's service clubs with the suggestion that they add this new version of an old favorite to the song programs at their regular meetings.

Here are the words:

Buy the bonds, buy the bonds,
Build the ships, make the tanks, send the planes,
Tell the Japs we're coming, to do some bombing,
Our planes are flying everywhere.
Save your cash, buy more bonds—
Send supplies, send them ships—tell the Japs,
We'll be over we'll bowl them over,
And we won't come back 'til we sink the Jap navee.

Clipping Wages For Bonds, War Taxes Foreseen

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Compulsory part payment of salaries and wages in defense bonds, and even higher taxes, were foreseen today by the national resources planning board in an analysis of the trends of war needs and post war policy.

The board, a federal agency, scouted any theory that a post-war depression was inevitable.

With respect to the war period, the agency, in a special pamphlet, said the following policies were indicated:

1. High corporate-income and excess-profits taxes, 2 Sharply progressive estate taxes; 3 Broadening of individual income-tax base together with steeply graduated surtax rates, 4. Sharp increase in excise taxes on commodities competing with the war program, 5. Part payment of wages and salaries in defense bonds; and 6. "Qualitative shift in the components of consumption."

GREECE HUNGRY

Report Says Famine Kills 2,000, Bread Costs $15.

BERN, Switzerland — (AP) — Famine conditions in Greece are so acute that 2000 persons died in Athens alone in a single day and bread sells for $15 a loaf, the Journal De Geneve reported today.

The paper quoted an anonymous letter dated Dec. 9, 1941, from a writer in Greece as the source of its information.

"People of the streets all are like skeletons and on every corner people are lying down," the letter said. "The winter is especially intense and there is no wood.

"Only the richest can afford available food, with bread selling at $15 a loaf."

GETS ESTATE

Gable Named Sole Heir in Will of Carole Lombard.

HOLLYWOOD —(U.P.)— Actress Carole Lombard's entire estate was left to her husband, Clark Gable, her will filed for probate disclosed today.

Although Miss Lombard, who died in a plane crash near the California-Nevada border 10 days ago, had an income of approximately $400,000 a year, the will placed the value of her estate only "in excess of $10,000" to meet a California legal requirement.

SPRING? WELL, CITY'S READY

Contracts Let For Materials To Fix Winter-Torn Streets; Oil For Dusty Alleys.

Spring may not be "just around the corner" for a few weeks yet but City hall started to prepare for it today by letting bids for bricks and asphalt, cut back for street repair, road oil to keep down the dust, and paint to keep the traffic safeguards in A-1 condition.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said the bids were let today. There was only one bidder in each classification, he said.

In addition to contracts for road materials and traffic paint a contract was also awarded for 600 garbage cans and 300 lids.

Defense priorities hampered the city from obtaining sufficient number of cans some time ago but the Martin Hardware company, which received the contract does not anticipate any delay in supplying containers at this time.

The cans cost the city $1.34 each and the lids 33 cents each.

The Mansfield Asphalt and Paving company was awarded the contract for 5,000 gallons of asphalt cut back that will be furnished and applied at 12 and three-tenths cents per gallon. The same company also received the contract for seven carloads of road oil delivered in car load lots at five and three-quarters cents per gallon.

Contract for 40,000 two and one-half inch paving brick was awarded to the Medal Brick Tile company at a price of $31 per thousand in carload lots, furnished and delivered.

R. O. Darling and Son received the contract for 2,000 cubic yards of slag furnished and delivered at $1.69 per cubic yard or furnished alone at 98 cents per cubic yard.

The Martin Hardware company also received the order for 500 gallons of traffic paint, the white paint to cost $1.46 per gallon, the orange $1.38 and the yellow $1.82.

LAUNCH PLAN

Democratic Women Urged to 'Adopt a Soldier.'

COLUMBUS —(INS)— An "adopt a soldier" program was launched today by Mrs. Lena G. Siferd, president of the Federated Democratic Women of Ohio.

The plan calls for members of the federation in each Ohio county to secure lists of men in all branches of the service. These are to be properly apportioned among the members and at regular intervals some token of friendship and cheer would be sent.

Patrolmen Find Bucyrus Car 3 Hours After Theft.

Mansfield's state highway patrol substation recovered a stolen car last night, just three hours after it was reported stolen by Bucyrus police.

They found the car abandoned in a ditch on U. S. Route 30N, 150 feet east of the junction with highway 314.

Bombers Sink Transport, Set Another Afire

Pound Home Enemy Naval Disaster In Macassar Strait; Foe Loses 36 Ships Damaged or Sent to Bottom In Five Days.

BULLETIN

SINGAPORE — (UP) — Evacuation of the north coast area of Singapore island was ordered officially today.

BULLETIN

RANGOON, Burma—(UP)—American fighter pilots shot down from six to 12 Japanese airplanes today and damaged nine others. Allied bombers heavily attacked the enemy air base at Bangkok, and British defense forces were reported fighting Japanese invaders east of Moulmein and the Salween river.

(By Associated Press)

Giant American four-motored bombers, smashing anew at a Japanese invasion armada in Macassar strait, sank a big transport, set another afire and straddled a cruiser with sticks of bombs, it was officially announced today.

A war department bulletin said a formation of eight U. S. army bombers engaged in the attack, in which one of the bombers was lost.

A direct hit was scored on the cruiser.

Pounding home Japan's greatest naval disaster of the war, United States fliers thus boosted to at least 36 the number of Japanese ships sunk or damaged in a five-day battle.

Macassar strait, the roadway to Java, headquarters of Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell's United Nations command, lies between Dutch East Borneo and Celebes island.

An N. E. I. communique acknowledged that the Japanese had apparently occupied the burned-out oil center of Balik Papan, East Borneo port on Macassar strait.

It was apparent, however, that the invaders had been lured into a deadly trap, set by the Dutch more than a week ago when they announced that Balik Papan's great oil fields had been destroyed and implied that land defenses had been withdrawn.

In accepting the "invitation," the Japanese armada unwarily sailed into a hornet's nest of Allied submarines, bombers and surface watercraft. No immediate estimate was available on the loss of Japanese lives, which presumably ran into the thousands.

While the Dutch listed only 30 Japanese troopships and warships sunk or badly damaged, American accounts put the five-day toll at 36, including a battleship.

Dispatches from Batavia did not disclose whether the battle in the shark-infested strait still continued after yesterday's smashing blows by United States bombers.

"Japanese fighter aircraft which attempted to intercept our bombers were roughly handled," Gen. Wavell's headquarters said. "Two were shot down and one was damaged."

On the far Pacific land front, Japan's invasion hordes drove perilously closer to Singapore today as wavering British lines executed a new withdrawal, less than 50 miles north of the $400,000,000 island stronghold, amid the heaviest fighting of the Malayan campaign.

A British spokesman said that Japanese troops knifing southward from the Kluang sector, in central Malaya, were pressing the nearest threat to Singapore.

On the west coast, British, Australian and Indian imperials were battling fiercely near Senggarang, only 48 miles above Singapore, after a 12-mile retreat from Batu Pahat.

Twenty-seven Japanese bombers returned to the assault on

LEARN: U. S. Troops Start to Train for Raid Over Ireland

(By Associated Press)

SOMEWHERE IN NORTHERN IRELAND — United States troops newly established in Northern Ireland were called from their beds before dawn today to begin learning the business of what to do and how to behave in case of a Nazi air raid.

Their first day in camp yesterday was free for the men to settle down in their new surroundings and rest from a tiring ocean trip. But when the bugle sounded this morning it meant that an arduous training program was being resumed.

Officials do not conceal their concern that the German air force may attempt to give the troops in the new encampments a taste of bombing.

A German bomber was engaged by ground batteries not far away

UNCHECKED: Russians Surge To Rim of Nazi Defense Line

(By Associated Press)

Russia's armies, pressing their great winter counter-offensive, were reported surging forward unchecked today on the threshold of a 250-mile German defense line northwest and southwest of Moscow.

Soviet dispatches reported the recapture of 79 more towns and indicated that Adolf Hitler's retreating invaders were falling back upon a double-row defense system, a mile and a half in depth, extending from Velikie Luki to Vyazma to Bryansk.

Velikie Luki is only 80 miles from the Latvian frontier.

On the North African front, British headquarters said Gen. Erwin Rommel's Axis armies, which shoved the British back 150 miles in three days, had been stopped for two days and had apparently come to an impasse in their counter-drive.

Axis versions of the struggle differed. While Hitler's headquarters noted merely "reconnaissance activity on both sides" in the Libyan desert, Premier Mussolini's high command asserted that the British were continuing to retreat eastward.

On the Crimea front, a German war bulletin asserted that Russian reinforcements landed on the southern coast of the Black sea peninsula had been beaten off and almost completely wiped out in several days of hard fighting.

The Red army newspaper Red Star said assault troops were at the approaches of important centers of German resistance in

Probers Reveal Pilot of Death Plane Once Discharged for Breaking Rules

Report NLRB Forced His Reinstatement; Craft Was Off Course.

(By International News Service)

LOS ANGELES — Captain Wayne Williams, pilot of a T. W. A. airliner which crashed on a Nevada mountain killing its 22 occupants, including Carole Lombard, was once discharged for "insubordination and repeated noncompliance with rules and regulations," Rep. Jack Nichols, chairman of the house committee investigating air disasters, reported today.

The congressman said that Captain Williams was discharged Aug. 16, 1933, by the Transcontinental and Western Airways company whose ship with Williams at the controls crashed in flames on Double or Nothing mountain near Las Vegas last Jan. 16.

On October 1, 1933, Williams was reinstated and re-employed by the company on order of the national labor relations board, Nichols declared.

Planes Sink Transport, Hit Cruiser In Battle of Macassar Strait.

Singapore itself, attacking a suburban area.

Other Japanese raiders struck heavily at the port of Emmahaven, on the west coast of Dutch Sumatra, across the narrow Malacca strait from Malaya, setting two ships afire and damaging a third.

The Dutch also conceded loss of communication with the city of Kendari, on the southeast coast of Celebes island, but declared that strong resistance was being exerted against the invaders there.

N. E. I. planes again bombed the airdrome and storage yards at Japanese-held Kuching, capital of the "White Rajah" kingdom of Sarawak, part of British Borneo, it was announced.

Major attention was restored to the Malayan theater of the Pacific war by reverses at the British center and left flank which caused a withdrawal also on the east coast.

The Japanese fifth division struck at the center between Ayer Hitam and Kluang, a railroad town in the highlands about 50 miles north of Singapore.

A major battle appeared to be in the making on the east coast — where artillery-backed British infantrymen were based at Jemaluang— as the Japanese moved up reinforcements from transports which reached Endau yesterday despite heavy attacks by the RAF.

Intense aerial activity was reported on both sides

President Roosevelt indicated in his press conference yesterday that the immediate strategy of the United Nations is to hold Australia and the Netherlands Indies as a base for a Pacific offensive.

Eelco Van Kleffens, foreign minister of the Netherlands government-in-exil, was en route to Washington from London for a month of conferences on Pacific problems and may represent the nation on any war council set up by the United Nations.

Australia, fighting the Japanese in the islands which screen her on the north, named Sir Earle Page, her special minister to Britain, to represent her in the British war cabinet until the post can be filled by a regular appointment.

Battle Keeps Flag Flying At Midway

WASHINGTON — (U P) — The American flag still flies over Midway island today because that tiny outpost's marine garrison dished it out—hot and heavy.

The combination of American courage and good marksmanship was too much for the Japanese and so their first assault on Midway, on the night of the Dec. 7 attack on Pearl Harbor, failed. They turned tail and ran after the marine shore batteries scored damaging hits on a Japanese cruiser and destroyer

Two marines were killed, one of them First Lieut George H Cannon, who was cited for "courage, coolness and high sense of duty."

It was at 9 30 p m. on a moonlight night that the Japanese first struck Midway. Before the ships could be identified by the garrison the Japanese opened fire.

Twenty minutes later, the Japanese ships closed in within range of the marine guns. The marines held their fire until the leading ship approached to within 4500 yards. Suddenly, the American searchlights flashed on.

The marine guns blazed immediately.

The searchlight was in action only three or four minutes. Yet, during that brief period at least three hits were observed on the leading ship two on the superstructure, putting forward guns out of action, and one near the waterline, forward Two hits were observed on the trailing ship, close to the water line, also forward

The Japanese then broke off action, by a sharp change of course which took them out of range. Black smoke was seen to emit from the hole in the side of the trailing ship, when it was hit by five inch shells.

U. S. Pours Help To South Pacific Area

WASHINGTON — (U P) — America today poured aid toward the southwest Pacific where Gen Douglas MacArthur's men and the forces of Britain Netherlands and Australia fought off an expanding Japanese offensive backed by possibly 1,000,000 men.

President Roosevelt revealed that help is being rushed with all possible speed to the Pacific war theater. He declined to specify the type of aid or whether it included one of the six, eight or 10 American Expeditionary Forces which he said have been dispatched around the world. However, he said very good progress is being made in movement of supplies to what he called the A-B-D-A area (America, British, Dutch, Australia).

MacArthur's men of Batan enjoyed a momentary respite but new and even more fierce Japanese attacks were expected.

Churchill Assured Of Favoring Vote

LONDON—(UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill was assured today of an overwhelming majority when parliamentary liberals followed laborites in deciding to support the vote of confidence he demanded yesterday.

It was considered possible that some liberals and laborites would take independent action, but this number would be negligible.

Two amendments to Churchill's motion already have been laid down demanding changes in his government and a third was likely, but indications were that a straight vote would be taken.

The labor party's decision to support Churchill's vote of confidence tomorrow, at the end of a three-day debate on his war policy and acts, was taken by a large majority at a caucus this morning.

TRUCK UPSETS

5 Tons of Coal Spiled Over Highway Near Jeromesville.

Five tons of coal were spilled over an area of 200 feet on U. S. Route 30 near Jeromesville yesterday when a coal truck, driven by Delarcy Black, 40 Harmon avenue, overturned on the highway, according to the state highway patrol.

Neither Black nor his companion Claude F. Palser, 513 Central avenue, were hurt.

State highway patrolmen said that Black lost control of the truck after he had passed a car on the downgrade. He was arrested on charges of unsafe operation of a motor vehicle, and fined $5 and costs in Justice of the Peace J H Armstrong's court at Ashland.

Brazil Breaks With Axis But Border Trouble Flares Anew.

RIO DE JANEIRO — (AP) — President Getulio Vargas today signed a decree breaking Brazil's diplomatic and commercial relations with Germany, Italy and Japan.

Irish Leader Hits De Valera Protest

BELFAST, Northern Ireland—(AP)—Prime Minister John M. Andrews told parliament here today that Eamon De Valera, prime minister of Eire, had no right to protest the arrival of United States troops in Ulster (northern Ireland).

(De Valera contended that the debarkation of U. S. troops on the northern side of the border emphasized the split which led to the partition of Ireland in 1921; was carried out "despite the express will of the Irish people"; and his government was not consulted.)

"As head of the government of a neighboring neutral state," Andrews said, "he (DeValera) evidently resents the arrival of American troops here. No doubt he would have prevented it if he could, just as he has denied to Britain and the United States use of naval bases in Eire.

"It is our duty and our privilege to welcome the American troops, but to facilitate them to the uttermost in the task in which they are engaged," Andrews continued.

"Northern Ireland is in the fight for freedom and intends to see it through."

U. S. Forces Receive Aid From Allies

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Lend-lease has gone into reverse, it was learned officially today, and America's "six, eight or 10" expeditionary forces are now drawing some supplies from nations previously on the receiving end of the United States aid program.

In north Ireland and in the south Pacific, particularly, officials said, the British have been lend-leasing food, housing and some military supplies to the United States forces. The other locations are military secrets, but President Roosevelt said yesterday that the United States has 6, 8 or 10 such expeditions.

This answers in part, an official said, the frequent question of how lend-lease articles were going to be paid back. From the first, President Roosevelt proposed that it be paid back in kind rather than in money. Whether the return payments will come near balancing the books, however, is something the officials don't know.

Lend-lease cash expenditures announced thus far amount to about $1,200,000,000, not counting a large amount of supplies shipped from government-owned stocks. Lend-lease appropriations amount to about $13,000,000,000 that Henderson would be retained in the price administration post he now holds by virtue of an executive order. The added rationing authority, given him with Mr. Roosevelt's approval, virtually guaranteed that the name of Henderson in the next few weeks would become a by-word in the kitchens, corner stores and offices of America.

Further rationing, the WPB board observed, "seems inevitable."

Signature of the price fixing measure will not necessarily mean an immediate flood of price-fixing orders, said one of Henderson's lieutenants, who declared that situations will be met as they arise.

Relying almost entirely up to now on voluntary arrangements and orders without the specific support of law, the OPA has fixed price ceilings on 72 commodities ranging from washed cattle-tail hair to steel.

In addition, it has reached voluntary price agreements with about 100 individual producers, frozen some prices, and listed others at what it considered "fair."

In all, about 35 per cent of the total value of wholesale goods is already under price control, as is almost half the field of metals and metal products.

The scope of price control is enlarged tremendously by the new measure. Here are its principal provisions:

A single administrator is authorized to fix price maximums on selected commodities whenever he believes prices are excessive and threaten the war production program.

Except as to farm prices, the levels between Oct. 1 and 15, 1941, would be used as standard. Before farm prices could be limited, they could rise to 110 per cent of parity, the average price between 1919-29, or the level on Oct. 1 or Dec. 15, 1941. Farm price orders would be subject to approval of the secretary of agriculture. The administrator also could buy and sell commodities to stimulate production and control prices, and would have the power to check profiteering and hoarding.

Rent maximums, with April 1, 1941, charges as a standard, also could be ordered in crowded defense areas.

Buyers and sellers of all commodities affected by price orders, except farmers and fishermen, would be licensed. After one violation and a warning, the administrator could ask the courts to suspend a license for as long as 12 months.

Criminal penalties up to $5,000 fine and two years in jail also are provided for violators

Appeals could be taken from OPA orders, either to the administrator, a special court of federal judges, or the supreme court. Wages are exempt from limitation as are rates charged by publishers of newspapers, books and periodicals, press associations, railroads, public utilities, radio, motion pictures or other theaters, outdoor advertising firms, doctors and lawyers.

YANKEES FACE HENRICH LOSS

But His Draft Classification Remains Tentative.

"ASSILLON —(INS)— The New York Yankees today were in danger of losing Tom Henrich, star outfielder, to the army, but contrary to earlier reports the danger was not as acute as supposed.

Henrich, according to his draft board, has not been classified 1-A as reported but is lasted as 1-tentative. Henrich had been in 1-H, deferred because he was over 28. Since the start of the war, however, his deferment will rest solely on his claims of dependency.

Henrich last July married Miss Eileen O'Reilly, a nurse he met at St. Elizabeth's hospital in New York while being treated for a knee injury.

DRINKS HIT BY SUGAR RATIONS

definite monthly quotas from the government.

One Mansfield candy maker explained that "if the quota of sugar is a little smaller we'll meet it by turning to candies without so much sugar content. This would mean less hard candy and more creams, caramels and nougatines."

Bakers said they anticipated no immediate reduction in the amount of sugar they will use in cakes and pies, but they added, that there may be less frosting on some of the cakes.

Despite the prediction that the output of certain canned goods may be cut 60 per cent, Mansfield retailers said they have experienced no rush to buy canned articles. Most of them, however, said sales of canned goods have increased.

One grocer said he is limiting the sale of canned goods, especially pineapple and others from the Pacific war zones.

A wholesaler said some packers are using more glass containers to conserve tin and avoid sharp reductions in the production of canned foods.

Ice cream manufacturers said they may be forced to cut their output as much as 15 per cent, but it will come during the winter, or "off-season," and the public won't notice it so much.

The Office of Price Administration took steps today to keep the housewives who stocked up on sugar from benefiting from their supposed foresight.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson said those persons who have hoards of sugar might as well start using it and stop buying for they will not be permitted to get more sugar until their supplies have been reduced to normal.

Rationing books will be issued within the next few weeks, but Henderson didn't say how the rationing boards will check the amount of sugar supplies in homes.

NAZI SUBMARINE BAGS NINTH SHIP

had struck their 7,098-ton ship at 2:30 a. m., yesterday, off the Atlantic coast. John R. Patterson, a seaman of Philadelphia, said he was awakened by a "dull explosion."

"I ran from the forecastle, and the passageway was covered with oil," he related.

"As I got to the deck, I saw a submarine about 150 yards away. If we had had guns, it would have made a damned good target."

The radio shack was blown away, he said, and members of the crew ran from their quarters in their underwear.

Lewis N. Reno of Georgetown, Miss., the quartermaster, assumed command of the lifeboat after First Mate William S. King, of Philadelphia fell overboard. He was pulled back, and despite an injured leg, took command again.

Reno said they saw the submarine for five minutes after they got in the lifeboats.

"It was just lying on the surface, watching us," he said. "None of the submarine crew was visible."

The recue ship was the American tanker W. C. Fairbanks.

"We sent up three distress flares and the rescue ship reached us in about 20 minutes," he said. "There was perfect discipline among the entire crew and there was no panic and no noise while we were in the lifeboat.

Nazi submarines may have been less successful in their attack on the 7,236-ton tanker Pan-Maine, owned by the Pan American Petroleum and Transport company.

A navy spokesman said that the Pan-Maine's last message yesterday afternoon had reported a submarine attack, but that no further word had been received.

"Hope has arisen that all may be well with the ship," the spokesman said.

Submarines have attacked at least 10 vessels in American territorial waters since Jan. 14, sinking all except the 8,206-ton tanker Malay and possibly the Pan-Maine. The Malay managed to make the trip to Newport News, Va., under her own power despite damage suffered from a submarine's torpedoing and shelling.

At least 110 seamen have lost their lives in those attacks, and in the case of the attack on the tanker Coimbra on Jan. 16 the navy has never disclosed how many, if any, crewmen were missing.

The navy has not disclosed the exact nature of counter measures being taken to combat the menace of German submarines, although a spokesman announced last Friday that some of the enemy vessels would never "enjoy the return trip" Aircraft, blimps and surface vessels presumably are being used by the navy to locate and destroy the Axis craft.

Rzhev was reported encircled after Russian spearheads had driven to within 80 miles from the Latvian frontier.

"Soviet troops are blockading the enemy with small forces and have cut his communications," Red Star said. "The bulk of the Red army troops are pursuing the retreating Fascists, splitting them into isolated groups and annihilating them"

The British radio said the Russians had blown up a hotel in which 150 officers were billeted at Orel, a railway city 200 miles south of the capital which is reported to be the objective of a land drive. The Soviet information bureau said Ukranian guerrillas killed two German generals.

Recapture of a number of additional towns and villages was announced by the Soviet information bureau.

British bombers—to be joined eventually by United States fliers in assaults upon Axis targets by report of Prime Minister Churchill—struck again last night at the docks of Brest and Boulogne, on the German-occupied French coast.

He said that the information was obtained from the company's personnel file which was subpoenaed for the official hearing into the Nevada plane crash.

The congressman refused to discuss further details of Williams' discharge nine years ago.

Testimony taken during the first session of the hearing last Friday established that the skyliner was ten degrees off the radio beam — contrary to specific instructions given Captain Williams and Co-Pilot Morgan A. Gillette.

Waldon Golien of Kansas City, T. W. A.'s chief pilot, testified that Williams and his co-pilot had filled out a "flight plan" at Albuquerque saying that they planned to leave Las Vegas on a 218-degree course, although they had been instructed to proceed along a 208-degree route.

Golien also testified that the flight plan of the plane called for it to cruise at 8000 feet while completing the last lap of its transcontinental flight from Las Vegas to Los Angeles.

The ill-fated ship crashed in flames only 100 feet below the crest of the ice-covered peak, the investigation at the scene of the crash revealed. Authorities said that if the plane had been on its specified course and flying at the 8000-foot altitude, the tragedy would have been averted.

ORDERS CUT

WPB Restricts Use of Nickel, Brass and Copper.

WASHINGTON—(AP)— Tightening restrictions on non-essential uses of nickel, brass, and copper, the war production board today ordered sharp curtailment in consumption of these materials in incandescent lamps designed chiefly for Christmas trees, advertising, or decorative purposes.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 28, 1942.

Appearing as one of Donald Nelson's strong points is his ability to delegate authority.

Congressmen seem to think there's enough money to pension themselves but not enough to pension everybody.

Tip to motorists who still have tires: Keep a record of their numbers, for identification in case of theft or possible substitution.

Moving Toward Air Control

DREAMS approach realization, and interesting possibilities are opened by the announcement that the United States is "Nearing World Air Control." According to the federal Office of Facts and Figures, the plane factories are getting into their stride. Rapidly expanding capacity, it is announced, will soon enable us "to increase production to a point where control of the air can be seized in all areas of the world struggle."

That statement is not merely reassuring as regards the present war effort, in which bombing and fighting planes are expected to play a dominant role. As these rising curves of production and air power are pondered it may be wondered where all this is going to end. Will Uncle Sam, when the war is bombed out and peace is restored everywhere, let all the fighting planes rust away and use aviation merely for travel and transport? Or will America, along with Britain and China, and maybe Russia, combine their air power and use it to keep the world in order?

Rudyard Kipling, greatest prophet in the realm of mechanized travel, with the possible exception of Henry Ford, wrote an interesting story along this line about forty years ago, when Henry was tinkering with the remote ancestors of present automobiles. Kipling visioned a world governed by an international board of control located in the upper air, with power in its planes to keep the world subdued. How about a job like that for the United Nations a few years or decades hence?

College Credit for Army Service

COLLEGES, like most other institutions, get a new idea once in a while. A good example is the reported plan in Columbia college of New York City to accept army service as credit toward a college degree.

"This plan has not yet been officially approved by the faculty," Dean Hawkes says, "but it may be that services with the country's armed forces for a year, even though it be in kitchen police, will count for something in the college when the boy later applies for his degree."

When you think it over, and consider all that an army recruit learns in training camp, not to mention what he may learn in actual war service, that may seem a masterly understatement. The educational value of military training is more appreciated in Canada, where fewer men go to college, than it is in the States. Recruits who have had ambition but few opportunities usually brag, when they come home, about the education they're getting.

In either country the physical education alone is usually worth more than all the athletics a youth is likely to get in college. Incidentally, quite a bit of real education can be acquired by young men and young women in war industry jobs.

Defenders Were 'In Fit Condition'

A BRIGHT spot in the report of the Pearl Harbor investigation was the paragraph that denied rumors that many of the sailors and soldiers were suffering from a hangover, following a Saturday night spree while on shore leave, and were not in condition to get into action.

The report says: "Except for a negligible number, the use of intoxicating liquor on the preceding evening did not affect their efficiency. When the attack developed . . . the officers and enlisted men of both services were present in sufficient number and were in fit condition to perform any duty. . . . Officers and enlisted men, in defending against the attack, demonstrated excellent training and high morale."

Considerable effort has been made during the past year to ban sale of intoxicants in the vicinity of training camps, without much success, but there is probably quite general agreement that men in actual military service should be kept free from the effects of liquor at times when even mild intoxication might have fatal results.

It is gratifying to learn that no such stigma rests on those charged with the defense of Pearl Harbor—and it may be hoped that use of intoxicants will at no time weaken the fighting power of this country or reduce the war effort of its civilian population.

When Japan Needed Help

AN AMERICAN who has traveled much in Japan says there is a museum in Yokohama devoted to the earthquake of 1923, which almost wiped Tokyo and Yokohama off the map. Nearly 100,000 people were killed in this disaster and its effects are still visible in Yokohama.

"Among the exhibits in the earthquake museum," he says, "are charts showing that the American people contributed more money to the relief of the Japanese victims than all the rest of the world put together. There are touching testimonials to the generosity and the helpfulness of the Americans.

"I wonder if those exhibits are still on public view in Japan. Probably not. They would be confusing to the Japanese, who are now being taught that Americans are a loathsome people, steeped in brutality."

More Scrap Metal Than You Think

SURPRISING results are being reported in connection with the collection of scrap iron—now badly needed for war materials.

In one Ohio city a business man who has been active in pushing this kind of volunteer work tells of something that happened "right under his own nose."

He lives in an apartment house, and naturally asked the manager of the building to go around the place and see what he could pick up. The manager thought it wouldn't amount to much, but was willing to oblige. When he produced the results, five tons of scrap metal had been unearthed!

Some of those ailing South American states may not yet realize how much they have been helped by the Monroe doctorin'.

READING THE CARDS

Civilian Supplies Will Dwindle

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Experts on strategic materials simply shake their heads when asked whether they will be able to get their hands on enough steel, copper, lead, zinc, rubber, etc., to provide for the latest stepping-up of national defense needs.

The whole picture is best illustrated by a high official into whose office the writer walked within half an hour after President Roosevelt finished his outline of planes, tanks, etc, which MUST be made in 1942 and 1943.

"Can we do it?" I asked.

"Why, it's ridiculous," he shouted, "It's not a question of money. But where are we going to get the stuff? It's impossible.

He had pounded his desk in anger at the first word. Then he relapsed into gloom. There was a moment of silence. Then a sheepish grin overspread his face.

"You know," he said, "when the president said we must make 50,000 planes a year I said THAT was absurd—that it couldn't be done. Well, along about July we WILL be making planes at the rate of 50,000 a year."

There was another pause.

"So I guess we will do what he asks, even if it is impossible," he concluded. "Now, what in the world are you bothering me today for?"

* * *

THE POINT of all this now is that the president's specifications as to the number of planes, tanks, ships, guns, etc., WILL be met, in all human probability—BUT—don't look for any relaxing of present bans on civilian supply. Things are going to get tougher, not easier, and it would be wise to face that prospect with our eyes open.

Chief complaint is that everybody thinks an exception should be made in HIS case. The company that has spent a fortune convincing customers that coffee is better in vacuum tins; the vegetable and fruit and meat canners, who incidentally have been backed strongly by the department of agriculture.

Worst offender of all is Civilian Defense!

"The idea of a million air-raid wardens being told to get two shovels, and two pails, and every householder being told to get two flashlights," snorted one official worried about strategic materials.

"It would be much better to let a lot of houses be burned by incendiary bombs than to use so much metal in taking precaution against raids that we would not have enough fighter planes to drive the bombers away," he said. "Why, these Civilian Defense people have gone crazy."

THEN there were the people who thought the tremendous inventories of the big motor companies would mean production of cars until those inventories are cleaned up.

"The best copper mine we are going to discover," said one of the strategic material experts, "is in the inventories of a lot of manufacturers, especially the forehanded boys who saw the trouble coming and stocked up beyond all reason so they would be able to carry on.

"It is perfectly true that some of the materials we want already have been fabricated, and that it will be uneconomic to reclaim them. But war is a mighty uneconomic business, and expense is no object when we are worrying about getting planes and guns."

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Jan. 28, 1922.

Gas explosion wrecked home of John Kinton, 25 Williams avenue.

Word was received that C. C. Craig, Mansfield resident, had become seriously ill in St. Petersburg, Fla.

More than one hundred persons were killed when roof of Knickerbocker theater in Washington, D. C., collapsed under weight of snow.

Miss Kathleen Mohler and Monte E. Barrett were married by Rev. Charles F. Sheriff.

Boyd Young bought Crescent cigar store on South Park street from Becker & Pierce.

First letters were received in Mansfield bearing meter-marked postage instead of stamps.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Jan. 28, 1937.

Mansfield's and Richland county's cash contributions to the emergency relief fund for flood victims passd the $10,000 mark.

Henry K. Boughton was appointed city park superintendent.

Miss Helen Seaton was among guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House at a formal reception.

Mrs. Mary Stewart Aplin, 71, died at her home on West Fourth street.

Miss Mary Katherine Herold and Frank Kunz were married at St. Peter's Catholic church.

Listen World!

Leave Them Alone

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE are certain people you can't get along with. You try for years, but it's no go.

Yet you wouldn't acknowledge that you're licked. You insist, stubbornly, that things are bound to come right if you try hard enough. So you go on trying . . . fussing around . . . getting into brawls . . . kissing and making up, only to start another battle . . . worrying, weeping, wearing yourself and everyone else out.

You think it's their fault.

They think it's yours.

Doesn't matter whose fault it is. If you can't get along with anyone there's only one cause to pursue—

Leave them alone.

Don't get mad about it. The other fellow has as much right to be himself as you have to be yourself. He has committed no crime against you if his notions do not happen to jibe with yours.

He is really under no obligation to like you and you are under no obligation to like him. And the world will get along just as well if you don't—provided you are both tolerant and generous and fair to each other.

Indeed the world will get along much better if you cut out all this bellyaching, stop pestering each other, get back on your respective jobs and—

Leave each other alone!

And this doesn't mean merely a business associate, or a passing stranger. It may mean your father or mother, your sister or brother, your oldest neighbor.

The fact that you share the same parents, the same home, the same street address, is no guarantee that you'll have a single notion in common. You may live with your family fifty years and yet have less understanding of them than you have of the man you met yesterday. But what of it? They may be very estimable people even though they do not understand or even like you, you may be a worthy citizen even though you're not keen for them. You all have jobs which are much more important than mutual admiration. Then why wait for life in attempting the impossible.

"Why insist on' getting along" when you haven't the makings? Be courteous. Be fair. Be thankful, when possible. But—

Leave them alone!

And that means more than leaving them alone with your body. It means leaving them alone with your mind. If you can't get along with people, stop picking at them in your thoughts. Stop wondering what they're going to do to you. Stop wishing you could do something to them. Realize once and for all that they're different and that they have a right to be different . . . And that you'll never mix.

So stop trying. Stop peeving. Stop sniffling. Forget them and get busy.

"But that seems so cold blooded!" you protest. "We ought to love everyone. Love's the most beautiful thing on earth—"

Sure it is—when you find the real article. But much of our so-called love is simply a fancy title for a lot of high-powered cussedness and silliness. Such as a desire to gamble and gush . . . or a yen to run someone else's life. All of which will buy you nothing but grief. And you have it coming to you, if you indulge in that sort of sappiness or snootiness.

Timely Editorial

Suppressing Criticism.

The public probably paid little attention to the brief announcement last week that the postoffice department had held up the mail distribution of the Townsend National Weekly until the ban was lifted a little less than 24 hours later on appeal to Washington. The organ of the Townsend old-age pension movement, with a circulation of 170,000, was temporarily banned because of an editorial calling for the imposition of a 5 per cent gross income tax to help finance the war, instead of the use of savings stamps and bonds.

There was no disloyalty in the editorial, no revelation of information useful to the enemy. The paper was held up simply because some postoffice inspector disagreed with the financial policy it advocated. The inspector had no right to take the action he took, and the blunder was speedily recognized and corrected from Washington.—Kansas City Star.

Once Is Enough.

It will be a heavy drag upon everybody to pay for this war once. Americans should not be saddled with the extra load of paying for it several times over by handing tribute to profiteers. —Toledo Blade.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Mrs. Roosevelt Booked to Leave Soon as Civilian Defense Official

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Mrs. Roosevelt's days as assistant civil defense director are numbered.

She doesn't want to get out; sincerely believes that she is making an important contribution to this vital war work. But others, among them some of her best friends, think otherwise and, under certain plans quietly in the works, she will depart.

Friends of the First Lady have felt for some time that her presence at CD headquarters was not helping the agency, or doing her any good. She works earnestly and unstintingly, and during the pre-war period, when CD was chiefly a promotional body, she performed real service.

But under war conditions, CD has become a functional organization and the public is demanding that this crucial war work be directed by experts. Members of congress have received numerous letters complaining about Mrs. Roosevelt's continuance as a CD executive and urging that she and other "amateurs" be replaced.

Note:—Since the first of the year, Mrs. Roosevelt has doubled her already considerable monthly contribution to the Red Cross.

Royal Neighbor.

HANDSOME, young Archduke Otto of Austria created quite a flurry (especially among the ladies) when he appeared in the house restaurant recently and shook hands with many congressmen, among them John Sparkman of Alabama.

"I know all about you, Congressman," said the refugee would-be ruler, "I noticed that one of the neighbors in my apartment building had congressional license tags on his automobile. So I looked him up and found it was you."

"Yes," said Sparkman, "we live on the same floor."

"Now that we've met formally, I would feel highly honored if you would drop in some evening," said the Archduke.

"That will be a pleasure," responded Sparkman. "In fact, I think we'll be seeing a lot of each other. I'm an air raid warden in the building."

Senator Norris.

SENATOR GEORGE NORRIS, veteran public power champion, is not given to much talk, but when he does speak out he packs a potent wallop.

Despite the fact that the federal power commission is one of the most important and efficient war agencies, utility-minded bureaucrats of the budget bureau included in the list of government units to be moved out of Washington because of overcrowding.

Norris is not opposed to decentralization, but when he heard of the secret scheme to harpoon FPC, he hit the ceiling. He sat down and wrote a letter to the president. The letter consisted of only one paragraph, but that was enough.

Within an hour after the letter reached him, Roosevelt personally ordered the FPC removal cancelled.

Note:—So impressed was the president by the succinctness of Norris' letter, that he passed it around at a cabinet meeting as an example of "how to write a letter on official business."

Still America Firsting.

THE governing board of the America First Committee officially announced its disbandment several days after Pearl Harbor; but that isn't keeping certain New York warlocks of the organization from continuing their operations.

Intelligence authorities have a report on a meeting of this element last week in an establishment formerly known as the German-American Rathskeller. Sixty-six attended this affair, among them a number of one-time employes of the New York America First headquarters.

One of them was Marjorie Kennedy, who made the arrangements for the secret pow-wow in her name. Another was Mrs. Catherine Larkin, a militant America First stumper, who also was present at the meeting of America First leaders that was addressed by Charles Lindbergh December 19, eleven days after Pearl Harbor and shortly before he offered his services to the army.

At that secret session, Lindbergh reiterated his charge that Britain was responsible for the war and counselled his listeners to bide their time for future political action.

Two others present at last week's meeting were Mary Norton, who was active in an "impeach Roosevelt" movement last year.

Note:—Intelligence officials have records of other secret America First gatherings in Chicago, St. Louis and Los Angeles. At these meetings plans were discussed for distributing "literature" to the men in nearby military camps and also for taking part in the coming congressional elections.

Washington Blues.

A MAN named William B. Ziff came to Washington, hoping to get a war contract. He left Washington without an order. As he departed he put into words the emotions of hundreds of similarly frustrated business men:

"Washington is a funny town. It's got scores of hotels and you can't get a room. It's got 10,000 taxicabs and you can't get a ride. It's got 1,000,000 telephones and you can't get a number. It's got 5,000 restaurants, and you can't get a meal. It's got 50,000 politicians and nobody will do anything for you.

"I'm going home!"

Tin Cans.

HOUSEWIVES all over the country have deluged Washington with inquiries about saving tin cans.

The answer is yes, and no.

Yes, because the government is making plans for reclaiming the tin and steel in discarded containers. No, because the government is not yet ready for this program.

Under a salvage program being organized by the war production board, twelve strategically located recovery plants will be erected. Their location and the amount of metal they will reclaim are military secrets.

But, housewives, eventually used tin cans will definitely be a part of the war picture.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—E. Phillips Oppenheim has helped me run up many electric light bills, for I have spent scores of nights with the novels of this master of Monte Carlo intrigue. He delights in the salons and gaming room settings in which the mysterious young woman with the red lips nods significantly to the fat Prussian officer who is amiably losing a fortune to a sad-eyed young St. Louis man with curly hair.

During these situations the lights invariably go out, and when they come back on the fat Prussian officer is observed to be lying on his back gurgling out his life's blood from a slash in the throat cut by a platinum dagger. The young man with the sad eyes and the curly hair is gazing stupidly at a jade Buddha that he has unaccountably discovered in his pocket. As for the mysterious young woman with the red lips, she has disappeared. . . .

THAT'S Oppenheim and for him this talent has brought vast riches. It has enabled him to travel and study in far places, to own costly estates, and to utilize his leisure in such sports as yachting and grouse shooting. . . .

It is this last, this shooting, that concerns a letter he wrote a few days ago to the London Daily Express. . . . There is no flamboyant fiction here, no red lips and spinning wheel of fortune.

Says this teller of tales: "There are in Great Britain hundreds of thousands of elderly men whose favorite sport during their more vigorous days has been shooting of game birds. They have been used to the handling of shotguns since boyhood. Unfortunately they are too old for route marches or the full drill of the Home Guard. I suggest the formation of a Veteran Corps of the last-named body.

THERE could easily be one or two hundred thousand sporting guns at work when the invasion comes, and that should mean the shooting or the incapacitating of at least half that number of invaders. These veterans would be no expense whatever to the authorities. There need be no age limit, no medical examination and no uniform. My own twelve bore, repaired after a robust blitz, is in readiness and my No. 4 cartridge ordered."

Biographical note: Oppenheim has just finished his autobiography, "The Pool of Memory," and it will be published sometime this spring. He was born in 1866, married in 1892, and since then has written nearly 75 books, most of which deal with espionage, traitors, international intrigue, war, and sophisticate continentals. Recent titles have been "The Dumb Gods Speak," "And Still I Cheat the Gallows," "The Spy Master," "Envoy Extraordinary," and "The Curious Happenings to the Rooke Legatees." Until the outbreak of war his address was La Vauquiedor, Guernsey, C. I.

A Farmer's Diary

Food for Freedom!

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WITH thrift back in style and food prices going up, we are pretty sure to keep hearing more about the "grubstake" idea—a sort of food insurance policy that has been used successfully in Wisconsin for several years. It is a program for every rural person and family regardless of financial or social standing.

It plans the production, on the home farm—or on a rented acreage—of a year-round balanced food supply, made up of meats, animal fats, vegetables and fruits such as can be produced from the soil of your own locality.

We know that good health depends largely upon what we eat. Plenty of foods are needed the year around. By producing what the family needs and storing it, the income of the farm is saved for other purposes, and the family knows a security that makes them happier and more confident—in short, better American citizens.

How much food does a family need per year? Here is, briefly what the Grubstake Committee of Washburn county, Wisconsin, in co-operation with U. S. department of agriculture, recommends. Figure out your own requirements, by multiplying by number of members in your family.

Food—Amt. per person per year.

Milk—1 qt. a day per child—92 gal.

Milk—1 pt. a day per adult—46 gal.

Butter—35 lbs.

Cheese—5 lbs.

Eggs—30 doz.

Poultry—20 lbs. (dressed)

Meats—105 lbs. (about 2 lbs. per person per week.)

Lard—8 lbs.

Potatoes—4 to 8 bu. (if used twice daily, 8 bu.)

Tomatoes—3 bu. (can 20 to 40 qts. per person).

Leafy green and yellow vegetables—135 lbs. (store 1½ to 3 bu. per person, and can 3 to 5 qt. per person).

Other vegetables—135 lbs. (store 1½ to 3 bu. per person and can 15 to 20 qts. per person)

Fruits—95 lbs. (store 1 to 3 bu. per person, can 3 to 5 qts. per person)

Dried beans—15 lbs.

In general you should plan to can about 80 to 100 qts. of food per person—this includes tomatoes, vegetables, fruits and meats. (See your county agent for information about planting and preserving food. U. S. department of agriculture bulletins are free.)

Here is what one farm family in Wisconsin provided for a "grubstake" last year, estimating the value conservatively at $350:

Plenty milk, cream and butter; 1 yr. old steer; 2 hogs; 20 roosters; 7 gal. lard; 120 qt. tomatoes; 111 qt. vegetables; 295 qt. fruits; 1½ bu. dried beans; 3 bu. parsnips; 50 heads cabbage; 10 gal. sauerkraut; 3 bu. carrots.

50 acorn and Hubbard squash; 2 bu. rutabagas; ½ bu. beets; 20 lbs. dried corn; 1 bu. onions; 25 bu. potatoes; 2 bu. sweet potatoes; 1 pk. peanuts; 1 bu. hazelnuts; 1 bu. butternuts; 4 gal. sorghum; 6 bu. apples; Jams, jellies, pickles.

Food will win the war! Every farm can help. Food will influence the peace. Plan it—plant it—preserve it. It is time to start planning.

TODAY IN HISTORY

U. S. troops withdrew from the island of Cuba on Jan. 28, 1909. This was the second withdrawal. Following the war with Spain in 1898, the U. S. took temporary possession of the island and for the next three years affairs were administered by the War Department. On May 20, 1902, troops were formally withdrawn. An insurrection in 1906 prompted their return and it was not until 1909 that they were again withdrawn.

OLD DOBBIN'S ON WAY BACK TO FIELD, ROAD

Prices of Draft Animals Begin To Rise With Machine Rationing.

By REED D. SMITH

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Old Dobbin is on the way back in Ohio in the wake of automobile, truck and tire rationing.

The comeback isn't pronounced as yet, rural economists report, but the trend is gaining momentum.

The state's horse population shrank from 483,000 in 1937 to 441,000 last Jan. 1 but breeders generally are planning to reverse the trend now that farm tractor shortages appear imminent. The mule population dropped from 35,000 in 1937 to 29,000.

Already draft horses which a year ago sold for $75 to $100 each are bringing $100 to $125, dealers said. They predicted that the price advance would continue because it takes about three years to raise and train work animals.

Principal demand for horses and mules comes from farmers, but milk companies and other concerns are preparing for the day when motorized deliveries may become impractical in event of prolonged war.

One Columbus milk company is training 60 horses at the state fairground for delivery routes and reports from other cities indicate similar preparations.

Federal 1940 census figures showed about one-third of Ohio's 255,000 farms equipped with tractors but the supply of new machines has been restricted, although manufacture of replacement parts has been increased.

Farmers are being encouraged to put power equipment in top shape to help meet increased production goals for some crops but rural economists assert that numerous small farms would continue to rely on horses for plowing, planting and harvesting.

Darke county, Ohio's farm horse stronghold, was cited as an example. Economists said some 5,000 farms in the county averaged 70 acres and asserted that horses provided the most economical power on such limited acreage.

Scattered over the state are thousands of low-income farms, the economists added. How, they asked, can farmers averaging $350 a year income afford to purchase equipment?

Harness supply houses here said they were able to meet all current demands for equine equipment, including wagons, but were reluctant to hazard how long they could continue to do so. The supply of horseshoes appeared adequate for a long time, they said.

Steel wagons with rubber tires still are available, manufacturers' representative said, but they predicted wooden vehicles would become popular again if demands became great.

Milk wagons, on the other hand, are scarce and no new ones appear available. Officials of one milk company here were reported paying five times the price for which they sold delivery wagons some three years ago, when trucks were adopted, to get the same vehicles back.

The problem of training drivers for horse-drawn vehicles also has bobbed up, apparently because there is more to guiding a nag than just saying "Whoa," "Giddap" or "Gee."

Much farm equipment is constructed to be operated only by tractors and is not interchangeable with horses, rural economists explained.

"Farmers should attempt to do the best they can with the type of equipment they have rather than change just now," one economist remarked.

In the United States more persons die at the age 71 than at any other age, except in the first year of life.

POPULATION AT O. S. R. STANDS AT 20-YEAR LOW

Glattke Says War Taking Up Idleness Brings Reduction; 2,369 Now Confined.

One more in the long list of ways in which Mansfield has been affected by the war was revealed today with a report by Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke that the Ohio State reformatory population now stands at a 20-year low of 2,369.

Glattke said this decrease in number of inmates reflected a drop in crime which he attributed to two factors—enlistments by young men in the various branches of the armed services, and improved industrial conditions resulting from the war effort.

He pointed out the reformatory undoubtedly feels the war effects stronger than other penal institutions in the state because only men between the ages of 18 and 30 are sent here.

Formerly, Glattke said, there was a tendency among men in this age group to take to crime when unemployed, but due to the selective service calls and increased employment at defense centers, many potential criminals had been drawn into lawful pursuits.

Highest the prison population has ever been was in 1930 when following a disastrous fire at the Ohio State penitentiary in Columbus the figure was raised to 3,365 as inmates there were moved to Mansfield while repairs were made.

Although the state parole board has as yet made no move toward paroling inmates on condition they join the military services, parole reports are being suspended for parolees so that they may enlist.

Under war department orders, bans on ex-convicts have been lifted and they may now join either the army, navy or marine corps on condition that their paroles are suspended.

Meanwhile in the prison itself, inmates are returning to regular production channels after completing a small defense order. Manufactured at the reformatory are shoes, clothes, furniture and metal beds which are sold to tax supported sub-divisions of the state government such as orphanages and old people's homes.

Club Proprietor Enters Plea In Shooting Case.

Lawrence Newsome, proprietor of the Picket Fence club on North Diamond street, charged with shooting with intent to kill in connection with a shooting and cutting fracas at his club early this month, pleaded innocent in municipal court yesterday and was bound over to the Richland county grand jury on $1,000 bond.

Newsome was charged by police with shooting Rufus Dawson, 553 Lily street, in an argument at Newsome's club. Newsome told police that Dawson had attacked him with a knife after he had attempted to remove Dawson for molesting another customer.

Dawson was arraigned last week on a cutting with intent to wound charge, pleaded innocent and was bound over to the grand jury on $1,000 bond. Both cases had been delayed until the men recovered from wounds received in the scuffle, police said.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

INTERESTING PAPERS GIVEN FOR SOROSIS

Mrs. W. J. Bishop and Mrs. Besse Albright Present Program at Women's Club Tuesday; Mrs. F. M. Remy Is Hostess for Meeting.

HOSTESS to members of the Mansfield Sorosis at the Women's Club Tuesday afternoon was Mrs. F. M. Remy. Mrs. S. D. Hoover, president, conducted the business session during which the group voted to send "The Club Woman," Sorosis magazine, to the Public Library for use by the public.

For the program, Mrs. W. J. Bishop gave an interesting paper on "American Festivals and Observances." She said that many American observances are a heritage from European settlers, but the truly American observances are celebrated because the nation wants to pay honor to significant historical acts or heroes or to glorify some local participation such as "Tulip Time" at Holland, Mich.; the Rose Festival at Portland, Ore., and the Mardi Gras at New Orleans, La.

Observance recently of Constitution day and Flag day have gained more prominence, Mrs. Bishop stated, and especially Pan-American day, April 14, which is taking a permanent place as a reality and not as an ideal with Americans.

Paper presented by Mrs. Besse Albright was entitled "Historic American Shrines." It consisted of an interesting discussion of famous American shrines such as Washington's home, Mt. Vernon, Jefferson's home at Monticello, Gettysburg, Arlington National Memorial park and Plymouth Rock. Mrs. Albright included in her talk mention of a number of shrines in Ohio.

On Feb. 10, Mrs. W. E. Wygant will be hostess for a meeting of the Soroisis at 7:30 p. m.

Party Honors Boys Leaving City for Navy

Boys who left for Navy training service this morning and their mothers were entertained with a party recently at the Y. M. C. A. by members of the Navy Mothers club. Preceding the entertainment installation of officers was held. William Cox and George Bock, recruiting officers, were in charge of the installation. George Mullar, recruiting officer for the Marines, was the honored guest.

Norma Scott and Patty Watkins presented several tap and acrobatic dances. Accordion solos were played by Betty Roth of Shelby. Luncheon was served buffet style from a long table decorated with patriotic apointments. A gift was presented to each boy. Miss Virginia Cervinski led the group in singing America and the pledge to the flag.

Eight new members, Mrs. Spray Newkirk of Shelby, Mrs. Irene Holland of Ontario, Mrs. Myrtle Eulitz, Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, Mrs. Margaret Miner, Mrs. Florence Myers, Mrs. Ella Devers and Mrs. Pearl Dawson, were welcomed into the club. The next party will be given Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A.

Sorority Honors Mrs. M. W. Manz, A Recent Bride

Mrs Merrill W. Manz, jr., the former Margaret Black, was honored with a party recently by members of the Delta Theta chapter of Delta Theta Tau sorority at the Susie Janis home. Bridge was the diversion of the evening. Prizes were won by Miss Maxine Jones and Miss Betty Lake Luncheon was served at a long table decorated with an attractive centerpiece of lighted tapers and greenery.

Hostesses were Miss Helen Bunn, Mrs. Lyle Jones, Miss Doris Mann, Miss Margaret Byrd and Miss Lee Heim. The honoree was presented with a gift of silver. During the evening Miss Helen Lorow, delegate to the Province convention held over the week-end in Detroit, Mich., gave a short talk. The next regular business meeting of the sorority will be held Feb. 9 at the Southern hotel.

Class Meeting Held Tuesday

Mrs Lyle Terry, 618 Glendale boulevard, entertained members of the Earnest Workers class of the Park Avenue Baptist church at her home Tuesday evening. Mrs. Scott Hagerman and Mrs. William Selby were associate hostesses. Two guests, Mr and Mrs. Boyd Terry, were in attendance.

Is your child a NOSE PICKER?
It may be more than just a nasty habit. It may be a sign of worms. Yes, ugly, crawling roundworms inside your child! Other warning signs are fidgeting, "picky" appetite, crankiness, itching in certain parts.
Roundworms can cause real trouble! If you even suspect your child has them, get Jayne's Vermifuge right away! Jayne's is America's best known proprietary worm medicine. Scientifically tested and used by millions for over a century. It expels stubborn worms, yet acts very gently. If no worms are there, Jayne's acts merely as a mild laxative. Be sure you get Jayne's Vermifuge.

YANKS OF AEF GET ACQUAINTED

They Find Irish Beer Flat and Coffee Bad But Girls Are Friendly.

they will learn to like the beer.

There was some difficulty at first when the soldiers offered American money for their purchases, but that has been worked out in most cases.

The rate of exchange is half a crown (2½ shillings) for half a dollar, which is the same as the official rate of £1 for $4.

Irish people learned quickly to distinguish the Yankees because of their steel helmets.

The Yanks, however, still have difficulty in recognizing the rank of British soldiers. In some cases they have made the horrible mistake of saluting British enlisted men and and some of them have solved the difficulty by saluting nobody but looking intently the other way.

The biggest compliment paid the potent Irish whisky was that by an officer who bought a bottle —noting that because of taxes it costs twice here what it does at home—downed a drink of it and gasped: "Boy, that must have been keeping two Spitfires grounded."

Least likely to get homesick among men of the AEF are the Shepherds of Minneapolis—Capt. R. Shepherd, his sons, Sergt. Max and Corporal Robert, and his brother, who is a private.

The tallest man in the AEF is Sergt. F. R. Bradshaw, of Minneapolis, six feet six.

Mansfield Woman Dies Two Hours After Making Will

to the hospital in an ambulance. She died there a few minutes after her arrival.

Members of the family said that she had not been ill previous to the attack

Born March 21, 1876, on a farm south of Bellville in Jefferson township, Mrs. Tinkey had been a resident of Mansfield for 30 years and was a member of the First Presbyterian church.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. R. L. Henry of Mansfield; one brother, Arthur Moury of near Bellville; two sisters, Mrs. Barney Mattox of South Bend, Ind., and Sarah Moury of Bellville; and two grandchildren.

Mrs. Henry started home from Florida with her husband today after being advised of her mother's death.

The body was taken to the Finefrock funeral home where Rev. David N. Roller, her pastor, will conduct services Friday at 3 p. m. Burial will be in Bellville cemetery.

MAMMY TOWELS PATTERN 228

This cheerful mammy, so busy at her tasks, will make your kitchen a great deal gayer by her presence. And she'll give you lots of fun embroidering her in her different colorful dresses. Pattern 228 contains a transfer pattern of 6 motifs averaging 6x7¼ inches; materials required; illustrations of stitches; color schemes.

Send ten cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for this pattern to The Mansfield News-Journal Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly Pattern Number, your Name and Address.

Make your spring frock look DIFFERENT—make it with a lowered basque bodice, and add a touch of embroidery on the shoulder! Pattern 9974 by Marian Martin includes the transfer and directions. It's style-right, style-bright for your "dated-up" spring calendar—see the smart curved neckline, dart-fitted bodice, and front skirt gathers! Short or three-quarter sleeves are optional, and the bodice buttons pertly down the back making a side placket unnecessary. Do you like color contrast? Then, the front yoke, sleeves and skirt may be made of another hue. You may also use an inverted box pleat in the front skirt, instead of gathers. The Sew Chart is a step-by-step guide.

Pattern 9974 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for this Marian Martin Pattern. Be sure to write plainly your Size, Name, Address and Style Number.

Send your order to The Mansfield News-Journal Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"In less than 20 minutes" I began, "as you no doubt gathered from my conversation with your stepfather, I am to go over to see Redfield."

"Yes, I know," she said. "Something about an acter he knows, isn't it?"

"That's what I told your stepfather," I said. "What I really want of Redfield, or rather what my father wants, is to get him into a state of mind that will make him willing to overlook what Mary said to him last night."

"You'll have some job," said Olina, who has picked up Americanisms swiftly, "for as I said before, he is the vainest man alive, and Mary has a most artistically vicious tongue."

"And I think she used it fiercely," I said. "But I shall have to do my best. And just at the right moment, I want you to drop in on us."

"Up at Steve's apartment?" she asked dubiously. "What excuse could I have?"

"No, that won't do," I agreed "I'll just have to bring him back down here with me on some pretext. And here is what I want you to do

"As soon as we have gained your mother's consent, I want you to go into the apartment which connects with this one—I'll show it to you—and stay there until you see a sheet of paper come under the door. Unless there are other instructions on the paper, you will leave that apartment at once by the outer door and come around to this one and knock.

"You will be greatly surprised to see Stephen, and you will make some excuse for coming to me—asking me, perhaps, about what you shall do about a certain fan letter you can say you have received."

She gave a little start.

"I have the very thing," she said. "It's an oddity. It came this morning. I haven't even had a chance to show it to Mama yet."

"That will be made to order," I told her. "When you are once inside the room I shall ask you to have a cup of tea, or coffee, or chocolate I'm going to ask Steve to breakfast, and then you will follow my lead.

"I want to engineer things so Steve will ask you and me to go out with him for dinner. I will say I have an engagement. You will repeat your excuse that you may not go out alone with him because of your mother's rules. Then I will suggest Mary as my substitute. I already will have been doing what my husband calls some 'preliminary spade work' on that subject, and as a result I hope I shall be able to arrange the outing."

"For tonight?" Olina asked eagerly.

"No, not tonight," I said "Mary and Noel are out together somewhere; or, at least, I hope so. Mary left here with the express purpose of asking Noel to take her out for the afternoon and for dinner, and I can't imagine his refusing her, can you?"

"No, indeed," Olina said heartily, and I rose and went to the telephone.

"I shall ask your mother to come over here for five minutes," I said. "That will give me time to explain things to her, and yet not have to keep Redfield waiting, although you can imagine I am not anxious to see him. But it is a job that must be done."

I took down the receiver as I finished and put in a call for the Veritzen suite To my surprise Olga answered the telephone.

"Woman Business."

"Would it be possible for you to come over to my apartment for a few mintues?" I asked. "Nothing is wrong"—I threw that in to allay her always ready maternal fears— "and it is nothing really urgent"—I could safely say that, for I knew she would not delay acceding to my request—"but I should like to see you immediately if possible."

"I shall come at once," she said promptly.

"Wait, please," I adjured her before she could hang up the telephone, for I knew that I must keep Philip Veritzen in ignorance of Stephen Redfield's subversive activities until my father should himself divulge the information. "Don't bring Philip along Tell him this is strictly 'woman business.'"

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, January 29.
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A moderately active and productive day is read from the predominant lunar aspects, a presage that may be negated by an over-aggressive plan of action or by tempestuous, strenuous, imprudent, impetuous or high-handed tactics. This may preclude necessary cooperation from those in power or others who may resent overbearing, wild, forceful or erratic behavior.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is, although having the augury of fair success and progress may find themselves attuned to such high pitch, restlessness, over-aggressive and uncontrollable impulses as to defeat their own best endeavors and objectives Any such temperamental impulses might readily prove highly constructive by finding outlet in artistic, inventive, or other creative expression.

A child born on this day should have much talent and versatility seeking form in many creative channels, but its impulsive, erratic and peculiar urges may prove its undoing, unless given early discipline and training.

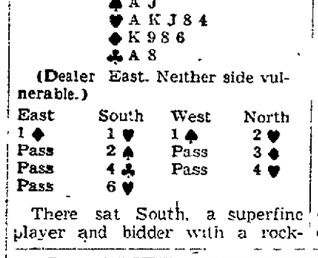
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PROTECT YOUR SIDE

If you for any reason decide to make a bid which shows your hand weaker than it is, your job is to employ every resource later to tell the rest of your story to your partner. This is especially true if you learn from subsequent bidding that an opponent has stuck in a psychic bid against you. Unless you show it up emphatically, your side may find itself dropped in a contract considerably below what your holdings justify.



(Dealer East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	1 ♥	1 ♠	2 ♥
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♦
Pass	4 ♣	Pass	4 ♥
Pass	6 ♦

There sat South, a superfine player and bidder with a rock-crusher not very far removed from enough strength for an opening forcing bid. Stick another queen or so in it, and South would have had such a hand. So an original bid by anybody else would be bound to be viewed by him with suspicion.

To find out for sure, however, whether East had made a psychic or whether he held more than his share of the missing strength, he entered very conservatively into the bidding with a mere minimum overcall, after considering several other courses. He might have bid 2-Hearts, 2 No-Trumps or doubled, but decided on the mere overcall, especially since he was in position to punish several possible contracts if the opponents got into trouble.

After South heard North make a free bid, however, especially of the fitting hearts, he had to yell aloud about his strength. Notice the bids he made then, which could not be dropped—first a cue-bid of the hostile spades, then the ace-shower in clubs. When these brought information about the diamond A, and the emphatic heart fit, he proceeded to a safe slam. After the club K lead, came three trumps, diamonds discarding dummy's losing club, the loss of a spade trick and then a cross-ruff.

Tomorro's Problem.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

What should West do on this deal, after South opens the bidding with 1-Club?

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — This column cannot let pass without a word about the annual drive for funds to fight infantile paralysis ending on the president's birthday.

Gen. Johnson.

This writer once organized and conducted that effort for the city of New York. While that experience by no means made him an expert on the scourge, it did afford more than a casual glimpse of the utter, stark necessity of this annual attempt to do a little strike back at a subtle, obscure enemy of humanity and especially children.

The cause and means of spreading this infection are not known. There is no specific cure. But literal wonders have been worked in lightening its effects if its presence is discovered in time.

This kind of treatment requires special equipment. If that equipment is available many of the ravages can be arrested. The trouble is that there are few hospitals, especially in outlying districts where that equipment exists.

The disease is not sufficiently wide-spread to arouse public interest and charity to provide these means of treatment except in the larger city hospitals. This circumstance has cut off thousands of suffering children of families of poor or modest means from assistance that might save valuable lives, or at least prevent these young people from becoming human derelicts.

To improve this condition is one of the objects of this annual effort. So obscure is the disease that, if it had not been for the president's brave example in overcoming it and his permission to use his birthday for the occasion, it woud have been difficult to arouse the enthusiasm that has made each yearly effort at least fairly satisfactory.

That has been (or used to be) a two-edged sword. At first the most unworthy motives were assigned to this as a birthday celebration—politics, self-advertisement and the like. Fortunately that has become a thing of the past. So much good has been done that there is no room left for that kind of criticism.

There is another aspect of this effort entirely apart from the furnishing of equipment for cure. As earlier remarked, the causes and means of infection of this vicious germ are not understood. For this reason the art of prevention has had to fumble in the dark.

Other diseases that formerly sometimes decimated whole communities have been largely overcome—typhoid, tuberculosis, yellow fever, diphtheria and several others have been mostly conquered by scientific work in research laboratories.

This fault has been remedied, at least in small part, by these annual birthday drives. A very respectable and responsible infantile paralysis foundation has been organized to allot part of this money to finance research work in competent laboratories. While this is a long and tedious process, at least a fair start has been made. It must not be allowed to die at its beginning.

There is some danger of that. This is a war year—among the worst in history in its bearing on the savings and the incomes of everybody. What they do not give willing to such an effort as this will be taken away in taxes. This is true even of the lower income groups. What they do give here can be deducted on their income tax returns up to a very sizable figure—far more than is being asked of anybody in this drive for dimes.

It is to be hoped that on all these considerations, there will be no let down in the inflow from this most merciful of charities.

ASK TREASURY SPEED HUGE WAR TAX BILL

Congressional Leaders Hit Delay In Preparing Levy Measure.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—With war appropriations soaring to staggering figures congressional leaders today demanded that the treasury speed submission of the new $7,000,000,000 tax measure "so the people can start paying the bill."

For three weeks treasury and congressional fiscal experts have been in conference on the revenue measure, but have failed to reach any agreement on the methods of raising the money.

While even this great bill—twice as big as any previous revenue measure—will meet the cost of only a small part of the war spending, congressional leaders declared that "the people are entitled to have some idea of what they are up against."

Criticism of treasury delays in submitting detailed tax proposals came after the house unanimously passed and sent to the senate a record $20,000,000,000 appropriation bill for the navy. The upper house, meanwhile, also has before it a $12,500,000,000 measure to buy 33,000 more army planes.

In addition to speeding action on these bills, congress also moved to enact a list of other legislation connected with the war:

1. Rep. May (D., Ky.), chairman of the house military affairs committee, said the house will pass this week his committee-approved measure to create a women's auxiliary army corps in which American women will be enlisted at $21 a month for non-combatant service.

2. Members of the judiciary committees of both houses pressed for passage of a new bill to permit federal agents to tap wires during investigations of espionage and sabotage.

3. Before the senate slated for quick action was the so-called second war powers bill, giving the government vastly increased authority to take over private property and to impose criminal penalties for violators of priority orders.

4. Ready for action in the house was a measure drastically to tighten the alien registration law.

Trying to act the hard-boiled army sergeant at an Emergency Service Training corps meeting recently, Scoutmaster Floyd Dent insisted that the meeting begin on time and end on time, so for 10 minutes he lectured every trainee who came in after 7:30 on the need for punctuality. When the time rolled around for dismissal, Dent dismissed the class, but no one paid any attention to him. Then he discovered the laugh was on himself, because his watch had been 10 minutes fast and the "late" arrivals were actually right on time.

A six-year-old pupil in the East Mansfield school who admitted proudly that he was the leader of a "gang that fights and things like that" created a problem today for Harry Sir Louis, county schools attendance officer. Sir Louis, looking for truants, found the admitted "leader" high in a tree near Liberty park yesterday and had difficulty talking him into coming down. The boy said he and members of his "gang" played truant and often engaged in fights but they never stole anything. Sir Louis planned to bring the boys into juvenile court for questioning.

Man's dependence upon mechanical contrivances to regulate and make his life easier was aptly shown this morning when teachers and pupils arriving at John Simpson Junior high school, discovered that the automatic clock and signal bell system had stopped working at 7.43 a. m. In order to keep classes running on scheduled time, it was necessary for the principal's secretary to ring class bells by hand at the end of each period, by making use of an auxiliary push button.

James Dalton's art glass workers are creating their pyrex birds, animals and other decorative objects before a fascinated young audience these days. Country Day school pupils have been taking turns paying a trip to Dalton's Marion avenue shop and have watched for an hour or longer the way the various objects are created out of slender sticks of pyrex. The students are making a series of trips to local firms as a practical part of their studies.

BLAST TRAPS MEN DEEP IN COAL SHAFT

Four Escape, Believe Black Damp Caused Tragedy Far Underground.

BULLETIN

HAYDEN, Colo. —(U.P.)— The bodies of 34 coal miners were found today in the depths of a mile-long shaft at the Wadge mine where they were asphyxiated by "black damp."

(By International News Service)

MOUNT HARRIS, Colo.—Thirty-four miners trapped in the depths of the huge Wadge Coal company mine by an explosion, were reported "undoubtedly dead" today as rescue crews strove to fight their way into the gas-filled workings.

This word came after mine officials earlier had expressed hope that some might have survived the explosion.

Four workmen who escaped when the blast rocked the mine, located in the heart of northwestern Colorado's mountain coal district reported to mine superintendent Henry Johnson that the 34 other miners were in the lowest levels about 5,500 feet underground.

"We think all 34 were trapped and many, perhaps all, may be dead, although we have hopes they are not," Superintendent Johnson said. "However, we cannot know until the rescue parties return to the surface."

The superintendent said there was "absolutely no way of knowing just what happened" until the rescuers return.

No bodies have been located, and even the exact cause of the blast is in doubt, he added.

Johnson said the four workmen who escaped theorized that "black damp," dreaded by all coal miners, may have been responsible. The "damp" is caused by carbon dioxide fumes.

The 34 miners were part of the night shift and would have gone off duty within two hours. The Wadge mine is one of the several large diggings in Colorado's rich Routt county high in the rockies.

WARNS WORKERS AGAINST STRIKE

Union Secretary Hits Plan To Walk Out at ALCOA as Unauthorized.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND—CIO leaders today warned several thousand workers at the Newburg Heights plant of the Aluminum company of America that strike threats voted at unauthorized meetings would not be sanctioned by union heads.

Angered by the management's refusal to grant wage increases, production workers here voted yesterday to strike at midnight tonight over what they termed as "stalling" in negotiations for a $1 a day raise. Negotiations have been going on since Nov. 1.

Edward D. Cheyfitz of Toledo, national secretary of the die casting division of the CIO International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, said the union opposed the strike and added that he believed there would be no trouble tonight.

Cheyfitz said he warned the men not to fall into a trap set by the company.

"The company would like to goad you into a strike so that the union would be discredited in the light of war production obligations. The men must not be hasty and any strike action would be completely unauthorized," Cheyfitz said.

TRUE LOVE SPANS ATLANTIC AS PRIVATE SAYS 'HELLO, SQUIRT'

(By United Press)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Radio offered a helping hand to true love last night for some trans-Atlantic billing and cooing.

From someplace in Northern Ireland, Private Milburn Henke, first American doughboy ashore with the expeditionary force Monday, talked to the girl he left behind, Miss Iola Christensen, of Hutchinson, Minn.

"Hello, Squirt," Henke began over the short-wave hookup arranged by the Blue network.

"Hello, Dinkie," Miss Christensen replied, nervously eyeing the microphone and adjusting earphones clamped to her brown hair.

First they talked of the difference in time and Henke reported that it was 10 minutes to five in Ireland.

Iola asked her boy friend if he had "met any good looking girls yet," and he answered: "No, I haven't had time."

Then she asked if he found Irish girls attractive. "Sure," Henke said, "but I'll take Minnesota girls."

Miss Christensen turned the airwaves over to Henke's mother, Mrs. Carl Henke, wife of a German-born restaurant proprietor. Mrs. Henke told her son that they had celebrated the 52nd wedding anniversary of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Henke, Monday night after receiving news of his landing in Ireland.

Then the youth's father, who had ordered his son "to give the Germans hell," began talking. He was so choked with emotion that he hardly could speak.

"It won't be long now that you boys are over there," the father said. "When it's over we'll be waiting here."

Iola chimed in to assure the soldier that she would be waiting too.

READY TO HELP

Red Cross Prepared To Get Data From Pacific Areas.

Richland county chapter of the Red Cross is now prepared to handle inquiries regarding the safety of both civilians and military personnel in the Pacific war areas.

Miss Lenore Van Gundia, executive secretary, said today that the office had already received a number of inquiries and that they had been forwarded to national headquarters for investigation.

Inquirers should be prepared to give the full name, rank and organization and the last known address of a military person as well as their own name and address. If the subject is a civilian the matter of locating him will be expedited by the inquirer giving the latter's relationship with the subject, and the subject's occupation, together with the name and address of employer or friend.

4 FACE CHARGES

Girl, 16, Among Drivers Who Are Accused of Speeding.

Four traffic violators, one a 16-year-old girl, were scheduled to appear in special traffic court today on charges of driving at between 45 and 64 miles within the city limits.

The girl, who will appear before Probate Judge Stuart Cramer, at 3.30 p. m. was clocked at 64 miles an hour on Park avenue west between Linden road and West Park boulevard, police said.

Another accused speeder, Francis P. Patterson, 320 South East street, Galion, was fined $10 and costs in municipal court this morning for traveling at the same rate of speed in the same area as the girl.

Frank Milem, 25 East Second street, and Gaylord W. Faiber, 563 Harker street, both arrested last night on speeding charges, were to appear in special traffic court this afternoon.

Ashland College Joins War Effort With New Courses

Cutting educational "frills" from the curriculum, Ashland college today announced that it will offer special courses during the semester opening Tuesday in accounting and secretarial work.

Purpose of this change is to provide skilled technicians to help the American war effort in as short a time as possible.

Many of the courses are designed to appeal to students seeking additional training, but not working for a regular four-year bachelor of arts degree.

Those seeking the A.B. degree, however, will also profit from the streamlined program. Students entering the regular courses may graduate as early as 1944 if they can weather the strain of such a concentrated schedule. Otherwise they may graduate in three or the regular four years.

Some courses are offered especially for school teachers and these with many of the business courses will meet afternoons and evenings.

The adoption of daylight savings time, college administrators pointed out, will mean that even those students taking evening courses will finish recitation periods before sundown.

Athletic Supplies Retain City League Leadership

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Walt Fensch, the old Mansfield kegler who was transferred to Cincinnati last July by Westinghouse, is doing all right for himself on Queen City alleys.

Three teams are now tied for first place in the Cincinnati two-man Classic league, and, yes, Walt is on one of those teams

And that isn't all. A special match has been arranged at Newport, Ky., Feb. 1, between Fensch and Stan Brinkman, Covington star and one-time world champion. So it seems Walt is still travelling in fast company.

* * *

I called Claude Watts on the police desk yesterday, and asked:

"Are you C. Watts, the bowler?"

"Well, yes," he admitted.

"Then you're the C. Watts who led the Commercial "C" league last night with a 581?"

"Yes, and I've led it before, but don't get me wrong. I'm not a good bowler, just a hot one. And I only get hot when I'm not in those dollar jackpots like I wasn't last night."

"That explains then," we agreed, "the 245 you rolled in that last game."

Now, don't rule me off the alleys for this one. But I'm beginning to C. Watts what.

* * *

Note to Ferrell Hipp:

Your old Seccaium park playmate, Jim Thorpe, is back in Galion for a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Monroe, jr., 202 North Liberty street.

And now's as good a time as any to have him over for that reunion you've been talking about since last spring.

And the noble redskin is as noble as ever. Now 54 years old, Thorpe, greatest all-around athlete in history in many an expert's book, told Galion friends he tried to enlist in the marines at Washington six months ago

"They turned me down because of my age," says Thorpe. "But I'm still light on my feet, and I've lived with a gun in my hand since I was a boy in Delmont, Okla., and I can shoot as good as I ever could. I think I could still show these youngsters something about shooting and if I can't get into armed service there should be something I can do to help out. I'm still looking for that something."

* * *

There's something I can think of for him to do. Turn him loose in Paris and he'll bounce those Nazis out of town as quickly as he used to bounce bartenders on the sidewalks of Gay Paree back in his Olympic championship days of long ago. As I hear it he didn't have a chance to bounce the bartenders' customers. As soon as he entered, they exited, yelling: "Here comes that wild Indian again." Or a suitable French facsimile of the same.

Loudonville Trips Madison Cagers

Loudonville extended its winning streak to 10 games last night at the expense of the Madison Rams, downing them, 36-28, on Ram hill.

* * *

Coach Leo Grimes' players held a two point advantage, 7-5, at the end of the first quarter, increased it to 21-17 at the half and 26-20 at the end of the third quarter.

* * *

High scorer was Jim Young of Loudonville with five baskets and two free throws for a total of 12 points. Trailing him was his team mate, Bud Darling, with 11 points and Harold Hammer of Madison with 10 points.

Alumni Defeats Newman Cagers

The old hands at the game demonstrated their skill yesterday as the Newman elementary school alumni got together and polished off the present team, 28-22, in the Friendly House gymnasium.

* * *

Leading, 7-4, at the first quarter, the alumni increased their advantage to 13-7 at the half and 18-12 at the three-quarter post.

* * *

High scorer, however, was Roy Manley of the present team with 11 points scored on five baskets and one free throw.

Gerber Sparks Rockets

Lanky Forward One of Nation's Top Scorers.

TOLEDO—(AP)—The University of Toledo Rockets are living up to their name again this season largely because Bobby Gerber is living up to his.

The Rockets are one of the nation's highest-scoring college basketball crews—and Gerber is one of the nation's highest-scoring college players. Just where the Rockets would be without Gerber's average of 20.9 points per game is problematical.

The six-foot, four-inch former Akron West high school star is a worthy successor to Chuck Chuckovits, another Akron scholastic wizard who first put the university on the basketball map. Gerber took up as a sophomore where Chuckovits left off as a senior and the Rockets just keep right on rolling.

Many believe the lanky fellow who co-captains the team with Bart Quinn is a better all-around performer than his predecessor.

Gerber is three inches taller than Chuckovits and correspondingly is at an advantage around the baskets, many of his points coming on tip-ins. But he also is a fine floor man, often bringing the ball down from back court, and is a crackerjack on defense.

As for scoring, Gerber has achieved most fame through an unorthodox, overhead type of shot from the corner but he is equally proficient at tip-ins, leaping two-handed push-shots from around the foul-line and even from outside the foul circle despite the fact that his vision is not the best.

His specialty, though is the corner hook shot and woe to the team unable to fathom his deceptive fake by which the ball is brought overhead with a sweeping, hooking motion. Gerber, back to the basket at the start, gets his range out of the corner of his eye and comes around with the ball.

As Gerber himself puts it.

"You sort of get the 'feel' of where the basket is after awhile. Then it's simple."

Most of Gerber's shots from any range travel almost with no arc, even his overhead tosses. This not only makes his shots hard to block but gives him a chance to come sailing in for a follow-through with the ball bouncing usually straight out from the rim—if it doesn't drop through.

Gerber started the season with contact lenses to remove the necessity of wearing regular glasses on the floor. In his second game he was held to six points by Detroit Tech, so he switched back to the regular spectacles.

Joe Leathers Tops Tire Loop

Joe Leathers rolled a 605 total on games of 193-181-231 last night at Colony alleys to take top honors in the Mansfield Tire bowling league.

His 231 wasn't quite good enough for high game, which went to Wolf with 234. Robinson marked up a 225 and Schmidt a 224.

Amos Has Nine Strikes In Row

But Heat Wave Subsides For Tappan Bowler.

Fred Amos got caught in a heat wave last night at Colony alleys, rolling in the Tappan Stove league marking up nine straight strikes in a 265 second game. Then the fire went out and Fred collected only 116 pins in his last game.

E. Rogers was somewhat more consistent as he turned in the league's high total on games of 255-203-158 for 616.

Mary Gentille had high total of 386 and high game of 148 in the Tappan women 's league.

Baseball Stars Tune Up for Golf Joust

Leading golfers among the baseball players are tuning up at Miami, Fla., for the eighth annual Baseball Players golf tourney there Feb. 11-13. Prize money totals $2,500. Among those who will compete are, left to right, Paul Waner of the Dodgers, Jimmy Foxx of the Red Sox, Heinie Manush, ex-major league star; Joe Cronin of the Red Sox, Ted McGrew, Dodger scout, and Paul Derringer, Cincinnati pitcher.

Akron Turns Cage Tables

Hold Youngstown Star on Second Try and Win Tilt.

(By Associated Press)

Akron University basketball players have tenacious memories, and are Youngstown cagers sorry!

Not so long ago the Zippers traveled to Youngstown and the home team, sparked by Guard Leo Mogus' 24 points, defeated Akron, 49 to 42.

Last night Youngstown visited Akron and the Zippers made the trek memorable by preventing Mogus from scoring from the field and pasting his team, 57 to 39.

* * *

Using a modified zone defense, the Zippers led all the way and the only tallies Mogus got were from the free throw line. He made good seven of eight attempts. Forward Johnny Lutsch and Guard Bennie Flossie scored 13 points apiece for Akron. High scorer of the game was Forward Bergman of Youngstown with 14.

* * *

In the only other Ohio collegiate contest last night, Ohio Northern swamped Gitfin of Van Wert, 68 to 33, at Ada. Eleven of the 13 Polar Bear players to see action contributed to the scoring, high man being Guard Shoemaker with 12 tallies.

Tonight Cincinnati plays at Wilmington and the touring Mexico City "Y" team at Bluffton.

Bernice Reno Again Leads Loop

For the third straight week Bernice Reno led the women's matinee bowling league yesterday at Colony alleys with a 524 total and high game of 205 Max Diners turned in high team score of 1917.

GIANTS WILL NOT CUT SALARIES OF PLAYERS

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Major league baseball salaries may be heavily reduced in this first year of the war but NOT by the New York Giants. Their policy under the new Mel Ott regime will be to pay their players as liberally as possible, President Horace Stoneham said today.

"Our payroll will be just about the same as in previous years," said Stoneham, "and the Giants have always been one of the three or four best paid clubs in the Majors.

War Changes Red Roster

Pre Season Book Lists Players' Draft Positions.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — The war put an eagle on the front cover of the new Cincinnati Reds baseball club roster, a defense-bond ad on the back of three new columns in the roster-at-a-glance spread—draft classification, marital status and number of children.

The 19-page spring training roster by Traveling Secretary Gabe Paul lists one of the Redlegs' smallest squads—14 pitchers, five catchers, seven infielders and nine outfielders, a total of 35 players.

* * *

Here's how the Redlegs stand in prospective war service:

Twenty-six in draft class 3A, with dependents;

Rookie Catcher Ray Lamanno and Third Baseman Chuck Aleno in 1-B, temporarily deferred;

Bobby Mattick, shortstop, and Rookie Pitcher Jim Prendergast in 4-F—Mattick rejected physically because a pitched ball fractured his skull and Prendergast for reasons unknown here.

The other five, unclassified as yet, include:

Pitcher Jim Turner, two years too old for the first registration, married and father of two children;

Outfielder Sank Sauer, registered, married, no children.

Outfielder Eddie Lukon, expects to be married a few days before registering with 20-year-olds next month and anticipates an early call to service;

Rookie Pitchers George Burpo and Ben Wade, not 20 years old until after next season.

Reformatorians Beat Sandusky

Ohio State Reformatory cagers moved into an early lead against the Nitro club of Sandusky yesterday at the institution and increased it in each following stanza except the second to finally win, 49-18.

High scorer was Hurd of the Reformatory club with 11 points scored on five baskets and one free throw.

Ohio Public Service Scores First Victory

Third Period Rally Gives Him To Westies Over Blue Goose

ATHLETIC SUPPLIES retained leadership in the City "A" cage race last night at the high school gym, with a 31-20 victory over City News, Ohio Public Service won its first victory of the season, a 25-22 decision over Yuncker Sports, and pushed their opponents into the league cellar, and Westinghouse continued its hot pace with a 32-28 win over Blue Goose Sohioans.

City News gave the second-half loop leading Supplies a scare in a rough, wide open battle, but the Newsmen weren't able to back up their battling floor game with buckets.

Athletics led by only 3-1 at the first quarter, but moved ahead at 10-4 at the half and the ball game was well on its way to decision. Each team tallied eight points in the third period, bringing the count to 18-12, and the Supplies won going away in the final heat, racking up 13 points while the Newsmen again tallied eight.

Dave Shelley paced the Supplies with 11 points, while Jumpin' Joe Miller chalked up eight for City News. Bruce McGinty was held to three points but kept his league scoring lead by a margin of two points over Howard Poole who got five for Westinghouse.

Ohio Public Service was forced into overtime play to turn in its first victory of the year and hand Yuncker Sports their fourth straight loss. Score at the end of regular playing time was 22-22.

The entire game was battled out on even terms, the score at the half being 13-13 and at the third quarter 16-16. Neither team had more than a three-point advantage at any time.

Oswalt won the game in overtime with a free toss and Bob Crawford clinched it with a bucket. It was the second game between the two clubs this season decided in overtime.

The Westinghouse-Blue Goose battle started out slow with Westies gaining a 5-3 margin at the quarter. Sohioans rallied behind Willard Lockhart's sharpshooting to take a 13-12 halftime lead, but Westinghouse bounced back in the third stanza to go out in front 25-18.

Sohioans, again paced by Lockhart, outscored Westinghouse 10-7 in the last period, but that wasn't enough. Lockhart marked up 13 points during the fracas, while Hummell and Rudolph each tallied seven for Westies.

Uncertain Destiny + + + + + +

CHAPTER XIX

She took his hand in both her own, smiling into his eyes, oblivious to Linda—his wife.

Only a year ago Linda Phillips might have stood by, awkward and ill at ease, as the scene was played before her eyes by one so adept at treachery as Brenda Coleman, but now Linda Baridon said smoothly, gracefully, her hand sliding through Steve's arm:

"Of course, Brenda de-ear, I'm merely Steven's wife, but I'm here, too."

For Brenda the tableau was shattered by those words. The stately blond could have overlooked shabby Linda Phillips, but Steve's wife was a new and spectacular Linda, with all eyes turned in her direction. To attempt an outright snub would be decidedly in Linda's favor.

All this went through Brenda's mind in a flash, and her glance in the other girl's direction was venomous, though her welcome was honey-sweet.

"But of course, Linda, it's so nice to see you again. I understand you're introduced Steve to the simple, rustic mode of life. Your mode of life, I presume?"

Linda colored at this sally. How like Brenda to bring her background and family into the battle of words with hidden meanings so skillfully. "On the contrary," she managed lightly. "Steve's mode of life has become mine."

* * *

Brenda turned wide, blue eyes on Steve. "You poor boy, shut up all winter long on that old, brokendown farm." She was determined to ignore Linda, and the latter, not daring to look at Steve, wondered how he liked this reference to the beloved Hillsacres. She could not understand now how a man as fine and proud as Steve, with such depth of character and breeding could be attracted by Brenda's shallow beauty. Beyond her vanity and dazzling appearance there was no warmth, no strength of character or sweetness or understanding. There was nothing.

"You made it sound like a prison," Steve was observing, amused. He smiled down into Brenda's upturned, flower-like face.

"Was it that bad?" she said innocently. "Then I know you're simply dying to get into the swing of things again after your—your exile."

The fact that several months had passed since Steve and Linda came out of their self-imposed retirement, failed to impress Brenda. She was determined to believe that Steve had been forced to live the life of a hermit, awaiting her return.

"Linda, I'm not going to be the perfect hostess and escort you to the powder room," Brenda murmured sweetly. "I'm going to be selfish and demanding with Steve, because, after all, I did have him first. Isn't that true, darling?"

She turned to Steve with an air of helplessness. "Listen to the music, Stevie. They're playing one of our old favorites, and we mustn't let such devine music go to waste. I insist that you dance this one with me—for old times' sakes."

Seething with anger, Linda turned on her heel and left them, as Brenda led Steve onto the floor. She had no desire to watch Brenda make a play for Steve, using all the tricks that had captivated his affections before. Instead, she made her way up the wide, curving stairs to the elaborate powder room where some of her friends were chatting animatedly. As Linda entered, the conversation stopped abruptly; there was a silence heavy with guilt. Linda smiled to herself, knowing their conversation had centered around her. She wondered vaguely what had been said.

"This is quite an exciting night for you, isn't it?" she managed to say lightly, "having Brenda and Steve and Greg and me gathered under one roof. Someone should do a play about it."

Four pairs of eyes were turned questioningly in her direction. Four pairs of lips opened to protest, but Linda laughed: "Please don't bother to deny you're all terribly interested in what comes next. Frankly, I am too."

Retracing her steps, Linda could not help smiling at the talk she knew must be going on in that upstairs room following her light-hearted announcement. She suspected the girls would be shocked and surprised and not a little thrilled by her affected sophistication.

Entering the ballroom once more, she saw Steve dancing with Brenda. He was smiling down at her, and suddenly the former model lifted her head so that her cheek rested against his. The sight made Linda strangely ill and unhappy. Then, seeing two determined young men approaching in her direction, Linda escaped to the veranda for a breath of air. The breeze was cool on her flushed cheeks, the music was tantalizing, and Linda hummed softly, excitedly under her breath.

Suddenly a movement startled her into awareness that she was not alone. A man was standing beside her. A man who tossed away his cigaret, chuckled drily, and spoke softly to her out of the darkness.

Standing frozen in darkness, Linda heard a strange, pleasant voice say: "I saw you slip out here. Is Brenda charming your husband again, Mrs. Baridon?"

Linda whirled suddenly, to see Brenda's husband beside her. She had never before spoken to him, but there was wistfulness in his voice that moved her compassion.

"I don't understand what you mean!"

"I think you do." He sounded amused. "Now that Steve is a success instead of a poor, struggling reporter, Brenda is determined to add him to her string of admirers."

Abruptly he broke off to say, "Let's go in and dance."

The ballroom was the last place Linda wanted to be seen at that moment, but she allowed Jerry Coleman to steer her awkwardly across the dance floor because she wanted to hear more of his story.

"You seem surprised that I can see through my dear wife instead of being charmed by her beauty. "In face," he chuckled, but there was no amusement in his eyes, "you probably think I believe Brenda married me because she loved me instead of my fortune."

Linda missed a step and caught herself. "I don't know what to say," she admitted honestly. "I'm not used to such frankness."

"Why shouldn't I be frank?" he asked bitterly. "I've always known my beautiful wife wanted only my money. What else did I have to offer a girl like Brenda? She's young and beautiful and desirable, and I'm middle-aged and dull."

"If you know what she was, then why did you marry her?"

"Fair question." He chuckled. "For the simple reason that I love her and I have the satisfaction of knowing she's my wife. If my money makes her happy, that's enough. But—" He looked Linda in the eye, his own gleaming with a sudden cruelty. "I hold the top card if Brenda ever decides to cast me aside. I'll never agree to a divorce, nor will I give her grounds for one."

Linda felt a chill of apprehension. Had this wealthy, unhappy man some ulterior reason for confessing his power over Brenda? Was this a warning for Steve that he could never win Brenda despite his newly-acquired wealth and position?

"I like you, Linda Baridon," Jerry said. "You look like a level-headed woman, so let me give you a bit of fatherly advice." He smiled a little. "I'm probably old enough to be your father."

Linda could not protest, because what he said was undoubtedly true. She heard him saying: "You married a fine man, my dear. Steve Baridon is a gentleman, so don't make the mistake of misjudging values."

"Misjudging values? I don't understand."

"There is a young man about to cut in on us. He's been watching from across the room for the past five minutes, with a gleam in his eyes. He's an old friend of yours, Linda, by the name of Hollister."

Greg? At last? Linda whirled around into the arms of the man who had ruthlessly broken her heart!

"Linda," Greg murmured, in the low, teasing voice she remembered so well. "I could hardly believe my eyes when I saw you: You're changed. So—so grown up."

The same old Greg, his voice caressing, intimate. And yet as Linda tilted her head to meet his eyes, she detected a difference in his face, burned mahogany brown by South American suns. There was a hardness around his mouth, an expression of boredom in his eyes that she had never before noticed.

"You — you're looking well, Greg," she said stiffly.

Greg laughed delightedly. "Is that all you have to say to your old friend? I come back from South American wilds to find my village sweetheart married to Steve Baridon, rich, famous, and" his voice dropped artfully, "beautiful."

* * *

Skillfully he had led her across the ballroom through massive doors leading into the library. Now, in the secluded spot, heavy with the scent of flowers, Linda faced Greg Hollister, eyes steady, hands clenched. Was this grinning, fatuous face the one Linda Baridon had seen so many nights in her dreams?

She spoke then, and her voice was dangerously low and calm. "Is that how you thought of me?" she queried, "as your village sweetheart?"

"I'm only kidding," he evaded, "but lord, how you have changed. You put Brenda a mile in the shade when she wanted this to be her night, and she's mad as hops at you."

"I think you'd better go," Linda said, because suddenly this man was a stranger. A repulsive stranger.

"Go?" Greg stared in astonishment. "But why? We've got a lot to talk about, you and I." He made a slight move as though to draw her into his arms, and Linda moved back, out of reach.

"We have nothing to say to each other," she said coldly. "I'd like to be alone, please, and Diane may be wondering what has happened to you."

"Diane!" He shrugged. "That's all over. Has been for months."

"I'm not interested," Linda said. "I'm not interested in anything you have to say now, or ever."

Greg whistled under his breath and the expression in his eyes was ugly.

"So that's the way it is?" he commented angrily. "Steve's money was too much for you. You haven't any use for an old," his voice dropped instantly, "and dear friend."

"That's the way it is."

Without another word, Greg turned and left the room. The slam of the doors acted as a signal for Linda to sink, weping, into a chair.

What a fool she had been, she told herself bitterly. She recalled the long winter months at Hillsacres when she had dreamed of Greg's homecoming. Everything she had done, every thought and plan and dream had included him. And the pitying glances of Diane and Steve's sister Mary, and, yes—even Steve knew what kind of a man Greg Hollister really was while she, Linda, had been blind to his faults; dazzled by his polished air and arrogance.

What was it Diane had said the night she fled the artist's apartment? "Greg indulges in his little romances, but eventually he comes back to me." Linda had succeeded in overlooking the fact that he had ruthlessly destroyed her faith and trust to satisfy his own vanity.

Jerry Coleman's words flashed through her mind again: "Don't misjudge values." So he, too, knew she still fancied herself in love with Greg when all the time, deep in her heart, it was Steven Baridon she really loved!

She loved Steve! Linda gasped as the truth of that simple statement dawned upon her. Steve Baridon, the handsome, polished gentleman who had befriended her when her faith in everyone and everything had been destroyed. Steve, whose every thought the past few months had been concerned with her own comfort and happiness. Steve Baridon—her husband.

Linda's first emotion was ecstatic happiness, but her joy was short-lived. She couldn't tell Steve simply that she loved him, since, after all, their marriage was but a business agreement. Yet, if he knew that she no longer cared for Greg, would it make a difference in his manner toward her?

The door leading to the foyer opened suddenly, and Linda lifted her tear-stained face to see a couple entering the room. Though it was but dimly lighted, she could see that the newcomers were Brenda Coleman, and—Steve!

There was no chance to escape. Linda slid down in the chair until she was completely hidden from view, but she could not help overhearing their conversation. Brenda's voice was low, tense with emotion, and Steve spoke curtly, yet with understanding.

"I've been so unhappy, Stevie," she was saying, ardently. "Oh, darling you don't know how dreadful it has been for me, missing you so. Everything I did—everywhere I went I thought of you and wished with all my heart that you were with me, instead of—of Jerry."

"Please, Brenda. You mustn't say those things. After all, you are Jerry's wife now. You wanted it that way even though I begged you to reconsider before it was too late. I asked you to stick with me until I made good, and you refused."

"I was a fool!" she cried. "Oh, Steve, don't argue with me. We've lost so much precious time already, kiss me and tell me you still care for me."

Linda closed her eyes. If only she could blot out this dreadful nightmare. She had been unknowingly jealous of Brenda because she controlled Steve's emotions, his reason for living. Now she was trying to undo all that Linda's faith in the man had restored, his pride and self-control.

"You're another man's wife, Brenda." Steve sounded desperate. "And there's Linda to consider. She is my wife, you know."

"Linda, Linda! Must you prattle about her too? What if she is married to you? Linda is perfectly mad about Greg Hollister. Everyone knows she married you only because she made a fool of herself over Greg and he ran out on her. Why, if he snapped his finger at her now, she'd leave you flat—"

"That's enough, Brenda," Steve cried harshly. "I don't want to hear anymore about Linda and Greg. As long as she's contented, I won't take the first step to break our bargain."

"Bargain? What do you mean 'bargain'?"

Linda held her breath. Was Steve about to reveal their secret agreement?

"Marriage is a bargain between two people," he said. "Sometimes we make a mistake, but the thing to do is to—well, put up with it."

There was uncomfortable silence before he said, "We'd better get back before we're missed."

The door opened and closed after them. Linda sat very straight, her eyes suspiciously bright. There were no tears now. Trembling a little, she rose and moved to the door. Whereas a short time ago she had been uncertain of her course, the path now lay clear before her.

If people chose to believe she really loved Greg Hollister, then that would be her means of freeing Steve of his unhappy bargain!

THEATERS

Smart Comedy.

Rosalind Russell again demonstrates her flair for comedy in "Design for Scandal," the Ohio attraction, in which she plays the role of a feminine barrister who thinks herself too judicial for romance. Walter Pidgeon as a news magazine photographer changes all that when he begins a campaign to unseat her in order that his boss can take his divorce appeal to a higher court. Edward Arnold plays the photographer's boss and Mary Beth Hughes is cast as the latter's wife. The cast includes Lee Bowman, Guy Kibbee and Barbara Jo Allen.

Action Drama.

The newspapermen who brave blackout and blitzkreig to report war from the front lines are paid a tribute in "Confirm or Deny," the story of a Yankee ace correspondent in London, showing at the Madison. Co-starring Don Ameche and Joan Bennett the picture also has John Loder, Eric Blore and Roddy McDowall, the young boy actor who appeared in "How Green Was My Valley." Ameche plays a Yankee newshawk with a story that could betray an empire if it were released, while Miss Bennett is cast as an English girl who shows the newsman that the interests of her country must be protected. "Honolulu Lu," with Lupe Velez and Leo Carrillo is the co-feature.

Panama Adventure.

Roger Pryor is featured in "South of Panama," opening at the Ritz today. "Jungle Man," with "Buster" Crabbe is the second attraction.

Comedy Melodrama.

"The Blonde From Singapore," co-starring Leif Erikson and Florence Rice at the Park, combines comedy with melodrama. Erikson and Gordon Jones, the latter in the role of Erikson's mechanic, come by a bag of pearls which they hope will help them buy a plane for the R. A. F. They meet up with Florence Rice, a jewel thief, who relieves them of their jewels and starts them on a hilarious chase. Adele Rowland, Don Beddoe and Alexander D'Arcy are in the cast. Brian Donlevy is featured in "South of Tahita," with Broderick Crawford and Andy Devine.

PAM—Reviewing the Strange Events! By A. W. Brewerton

? QUESTIONS OF THE HOUR ?
WHAT DOES IT MEAN? — A STRANGE MAN, ATTRACTED TO PAM ON THE STREET, TRAILS HER TO HER OFFICE DOOR --
1-28
LATER, HE IS JOINED BY ANOTHER, WHO OBSERVES HER KEENLY AND APPROVINGLY! NEXT WE SEE THEM IN AN OFFICE, IN CONFERENCE ABOUT PAM--- HERE SHE COMES!
THEN A YOUNG MAN, GIVING THE NAME OF WALTER WENTWORTH, APPEARS AT PAM'S OFFICE -ASKS HER TO DO SOME STENOGRAPHIC WORK
HE IS PLEASANT AND NICE-LOOKING AND PAM AGREES, AND WRITES SOME LETTERS FOR HIM.
AWFULLY GOOD OF YOU TO DO THIS WORK FOR ME.
BUT, LATER, WE SEE HIM IN THE OFFICE OF THOSE SAME TWO STRANGE MEN!
WHY ARE THEY ALL SO INTERESTED IN PAM ?
SHE IS UNSUSPECTING, BUT IS WONDERING ABOUT THE LOCATION OF MR. W'S OFFICE !
I WONDER JUST WHERE HIS OFFICE IS?
WHAT IS GOING TO HAPPEN NEXT ?

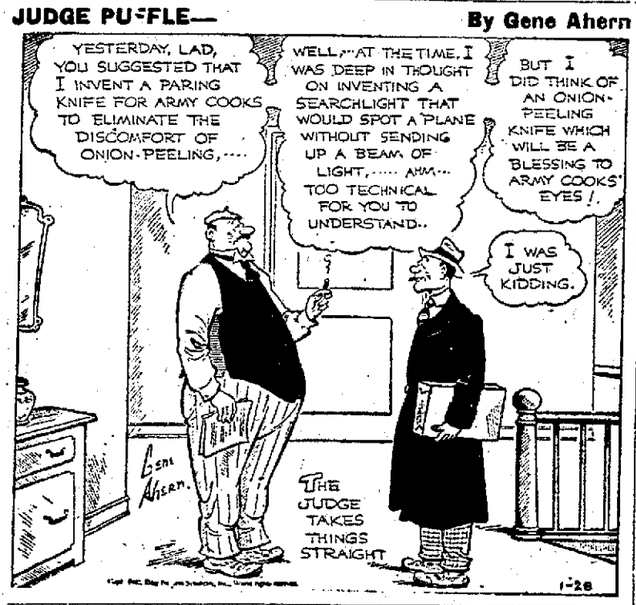
JUDGE PU-FLE— By Gene Ahern



YESTERDAY, LAD, YOU SUGGESTED THAT I INVENT A PARING KNIFE FOR ARMY COOKS TO ELIMINATE THE DISCOMFORT OF ONION-PEELING,....
WELL,..AT THE TIME, I WAS DEEP IN THOUGHT ON INVENTING A SEARCHLIGHT THAT WOULD SPOT A PLANE WITHOUT SENDING UP A BEAM OF LIGHT,..... AHM... TOO TECHNICAL FOR YOU TO UNDERSTAND..
BUT I DID THINK OF AN ONION-PEELING KNIFE WHICH WILL BE A BLESSING TO ARMY COOKS' EYES!
I WAS JUST KIDDING.

News From Singapore Causes Traders To Slow Down Market Action.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Absence of leadership and mild selling in steels and rails contrived to put stocks in slightly lower territory in today's market.

Inclined to retreat in early proceedings were U. S. Steel, Youngstown, American Telephone, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, Great Northern, Pfd., Southern Pacific and N. Y. Central.

Apathetic behavior of the general run of stocks was associated with increased concern over Singapore now under intensified Japanese invasion thrusts and further Axis submarine attacks on shipping on the United States east coast.

Stirring interest in boardrooms was the December quarter statement of United States Steel corporation, which showed a profit equal to $1.61 share on the common stock against $3.21 in the three months ended Sept 30 and $3.04 in the final quarter of 1940. The decline in profits reflected in part the setting up of large reserves for contingencies. Indicated earnings for the year were $10.43 a share compared with $8.84 in 1940.

AUTHOR URGES FARM DICTATOR

Bromfield Says Agriculture Needs One Just Like U. S. Has One For Industry.

be the order after the war because "there is no place else for us to go."

O. E. Reed, chief of the U. S. bureau of dairying, also spoke and urged farmers to milk three times instead of twice daily to increase production. He explained that because European countries have used their livestock for food, American farmers will have an outlet for their increased production for five years, "even if the war ends tomorrow."

Farmers must organize at once to retain individual ownership and freedom, Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau, told the farmers. Our job, he said, is to do voluntarily for agriculture in America what the dictators have done by degree in Europe."

At a meeting of the Ohio Agricultural society, V. H. Davis, of Columbus, warned that nitrogen fertilizers for orchard use will be very limited this year.

At the same meeting, E. R. Bowen, of Chicago, executive secretary of the Co-Operative league, termed the price-control bill passed by congress "an inflationary measure."

Other organizations met in conjunction with Farmer's Week. At a session of the Ohio Seed Improvement association, C. E. Humphrey, of Reedsville, was elected president of the association. H. L. Mantle, of Painesville, was named president of the horticulture group, and Howard Frisbee, of Cumberland, was elected head of the Onio Turkey Growers' association.
